WAUKESHA MEN ON LOST TUSCANIA

WERE IN MOTOR SECTION OF
107TH SUPPLY TRAIN

GRABOW STILL UNHEARD FROM

Other Local Men Reported Safe at Irish Ports. Were "Co. L"
Members

Waukesha is one of the Wisconsin cities to whom the Tuscania disaster comes home, and there were many anxious hearts during the days when it seemed impossible to secure definite information regarding the fate of at least nine local boys who were known to have been on board the transport. Gradually, the lists of rescued came to include first one and then another of the local men, and on Wednesday all had been accounted for except Corporal Grabow.

The Waukesha men were drivers with the motor truck section of the 107th Supply train and ranked as corporals. They are:

CLARENCE ANDREE, 104 James St.

LYLE BARNHART.

EDWARD BOEHMKE, 204 East Ave.

JAMES CHILSON, 130 St. Paul Ave.
ERNEST ALBERT GRABOW, 204 Grand Ave.

CHARLES P. MERTEN, 17 Baxter St.

AARON W. RHODES, 511 West College Ave.

ALLEN E. SCHMIDT.

ALLEN E. WILLIAMS, 110 East College Ave.

Grabow Probably Lost

Additional names of survivors reported up to yesterday still fail to list as saved Corp. Ernest Grabow, and his relatives and friends are fearful that he may have been Waukesha's first sacrifice in the Great War.

Ernest Albert Grabow was the third man to sign up when Co. L was recruited. He is married and his wife is at present living in Milwaukee. His father, Otto Grabow, and his two brothers, Fred and William, reside in Waukesha. Mr. Grabow is a cousin of Mrs. Fred Peters, whose home is at 201 Pewaukee avenue. Corp. Grabow and Corp. Williams had been close friends and chums through all their service as soldiers.

Former Co. L Men

Eight of the men were in the ranks of Co. L when that company was organized here last summer. Following the summer training at Camp Douglas they were transferred to Waco, Texas, and there re-assigned to the unit which they are at present enrolled.

Corp. Boehmke is son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Boehmke, and was a member of the Waukesha postal force when he enlisted last summer.

Allen Williams is son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Williams, and was a chauffeur when he entered the service.

Clarence Andree drove a car for the Waukesha Bakery until he joined Co. L. He is son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Andree, and a graduate of the Waukesha high school.

Aaron Rhodes was a member of the Waukesha Pure Food company's staff of workers. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Dell Rhodes.

Allen E. Schmidt was an employe at the Spring City Foundry. Newspaper lists credit him to Superior, though he enlisted as one of the Waukesha company.

James Chilson was an employe at the Waukesha Gas Co. plant, and has contributed several letters and poems to The Freeman columns while in the service. He is son of the late Charlie Chilson.

Charles P. Merten had been one of the Ladewig & Stock Co. employes. He came here from the East and has resided with his sister, Mrs. Conrader, 17 Baxter street.

Lyle Barnhart, whose name appears with rescued Waukesha men, is not listed in the city directory and The Freeman has so far not been able to locate members of his family.

Their Parting Word

Just before leaving Camp Merritt for their embarkation, the Waukesha group in the motor section of the 107th Supply Train, mailed to The Freeman the following verses, composed by Corp. Chilson, we assume, but carrying signature of six home boys. In the light of the boys' thrilling experience on the Tuscania, the lines are of distinct interest.

We boys in a Truck Company
Of 107th Supply Train
Wish you to know we're on the job
In snow, or hail, or rain.

And when we get together
After the day's work's done,
We talk about our happy days
When we had lots of clothes and "mon."

We talk about the Motor Works,
Where "Schmitt" used to work;
He called himself a machinist
And was not afraid of dirt.

And about Ladewig's machine shop
Where Merten put in time,
To make his needed daily bread
In this busy earthly grind.

Also about the post office
Where Ed Boehmke used to be;
He knows how many steps it takes
On Routes One, Two or Three.

We read about the Jiffy-Jell
Where Rhodes had drawn his pay;
About the stuff they make down there
And where it's served up day by day.

Clarence Andree was a baker,
Where he worked I do not know,
But when old Co. L entrained
He was right ready to go.

And always a good word for the Malleable
Where I used to pound the sand,
But being a sand artist will do no good
Over in No Man's Land.

But when we get together nights
And talk of a by-gone day
We remember the old Spring City—
The town where we drew good pay.

We always liked your water
It was the best we ever drank;
We hope we can find it "over there."
If it is, some one we'll thank.

f- We remember your City Park
e And the posts where we used to walk
2 To guard the squirrels and monument,
+ About such things we talk.

2- And we recall too the old Tower Hill
e Where as kids we used to slide, ff And over it in after years
d On a motorcycle I did ride.

e We talk about the Bridge Works,
d And the Kenyon Company, too;
e Also the Werra Foundry
e That to Waukesha were true.

8- And when we've landed "over there"
r Which now will not be long;
1- While our motors softly hum
1- And we sing a cheery song.

it Memories of the old home town
s Will never leave us now;
s We'll be always thinking of e The City Waukesha.

e When spare time you sometimes have e Just take your pen in hand
d And write to us of the truck brigade
d Working for Uncle Sam.

LOCAL MEN TO RECALL DEMISE OF TUSCANIA

Signal rockets were shooting high in the air, spraying their bombshells of colored light like fountains, but Allen E. Williams, Waukesha county's undersheriff, wasn't enjoying this lovely picture any too well.

This was a very serious predicament he and hundreds of others were in. They were troops being carried to France on the British troop ship, Tuscania, which had just been torpedoed. The date was Feb. 5, 1918, just 22 years ago Monday.

Williams was on the boat, sinking steadily, for two hours until he was able to slide down a rope off the heavily listing ship onto a British destroyer which had pulled alongside.

What brings this dramatic rescue of Williams and several other Waukesha persons to mind Saturday is the twenty-second annual reunion of the National Tuscania Survivors' association at Kenosha, beginning Saturday night and lasting for three days.

Waukesha Survivors

Those now living in Waukesha, besides Williams, who were on the sinking troop ship were Edwin Boehmke, a mail carrier; James Chilson, a truck driver for the Wilbur Lumber co.; Robert F. Riley, office manager at the Waukesha Auto Sales co., and William Jaeger, an employe at the Estberg jewelry store, who lives in Milwaukee. Harry Vandenberg, North Prairie farmer, is another close-by resident who was on the boat. All are expected to attend the Kenosha meeting. Williams has missed only one of the annual meetings since they began.

Besides Boehmke Chilson and Williams, who lived in Waukesha at the time of the sinking, there were other Waukesha residents on board the ship. Some have died, and others are now living in other places. Clarence Andree is now dead. Lyle Barnhart, who was originally listed from Waukesha in the reports of the accident in 1918, is not known here. Ernest Albert Grabow, who was first reported as lost when the boat sank but was later found to have been saved, is now living in Florida. Charles P. Merten is said to be living in Pennsylvania. Aaron W. Rhodes is now dead. Allen E. Schmidt is said to be living in Whitewater. All of those who came from Waukesha served with the 107th supply train.

2,400 Soldiers on Board

There were 2,400 soldiers, along with the crew on board the Tuscania as it left New York with other troop ships, to be picked up by a single British convoy ship early in 1918 off Nova Scotia. Three days out other destroyers came out to meet the troop ships. As the boats neared the west coast of Scotland, all on board felt that they were safely over in England. The afternoon of the fatal day, boxing matches had been staged on board.

In the darkness of the night the German submarine, eluding the patrol ships, struck, slipping away after shooting its torpedo. Patrol ships were miles away, circling the troop ships. Although help was nearby, the sinking cost the lives of 210 soldiers and 40 of the crew. The boat sank within two hours.

Most of those on board got off in lifeboats but the lifeboat to which Williams had been assigned could not be lowered because the torpedo had wrecked the lowering device. So he was forced, with others to clamber onto the tilting deck and wait for the destroyer to come alongside.

They were saved and went on to England and thence to France. Today, the sinking seems far away but to many on board those vital minutes still seem not so far away.

Company C Members Decide To Form 'Last Man's Club'

Waupaca — Veterans of Company C, 4th Wisconsin Infantry, did not allow the cold rainy weather to dampen their spirits as they gathered Sunday at Grand View, Chain o' Lakes, for a reunion. Captained as they were 23 years ago by Dr. C. W. Andrews, members present unanimously agreed that Dr. Andrews must continue as their leader, and as such he was in charge of all of the activities of the day.

Sixty-eight men of the 178 who enrolled in May, 1917, were present for their second reunion to make plans for a Last Man's club, completing a permanent organization to meet annually until five remain to toast the ones gone before, with a bottle of choice cognac to be placed in a vault of the Farmer's State bank until that day.

son, Waupaca.

Two of the company whose homes are in Waupaca were unable to be present due to serious illness. Lyle Barnhart and Ellsworth Barrington.

Fire victim identified

The victim of a house fire on Irmulco Road in the Willits area has been positively identified as the man who lived there, Vernon Laroy Hess.

Officials believe the body found in the burning cabin Monday was the remains of Hess, 65, but it took a fingerprint comparison through the state Department of Justice to verify it.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation, but fire officials said initially it apparently was caused by smoking in bed.

THREE AGENCIES PROBE CRASH OF CAR AND TRAIN

SHERIFF'S OFFICE, RAILWAY COMPANY AND CORONER INVESTIGATE ACCIDENT WHICH RESULTED IN DEATH OF BUSHEY.

Milwaukee, Sept. 6—(P)—Three separate investigations were underway here today into the wreck of an electric transit train, carrying passengers home from Labor day outings, which resulted in the death of one man and injury to 25 other persons at a grade crossing near here.

The Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company, operators of the two car train, and offices of the sheriff and coroner were working on reports which will be heard at an inquest into the death of Fred P. Bushey, 53, Milwaukee, who drove his automobile into the path of the speeding train at 5:30 p. m. yesterday.

Hurled Against Wall

Bushey's automobile was hurled against a concrete waiting station near the crossing. The train traveled more than six hundred feet, tearing up rails and splintering ties, before the first car broke away and rolled down an embankment. The other car remained upright, but was quickly enveloped in smoke and flames caused by broken electrical wires.

The crash was witnessed by dozens of persons playing golf on the adjoining Greenfield course and others swimming in a nearby public pool. Spectators were helping the injured out of the wreckage when ambulances from Milwaukee hospitals arrived. Private automobiles were used to transport some of the injured to medical centers or their homes.

Chicagoan Badly Hurt

Among the more seriously hurt was Sam Dague, 55, of Chicago. He suffered a skull fracture. Mrs. Lottie Church, 41, Winnetka, Ill., received chest injuries. Others requiring medical attention were residents of Milwaukee.

Although he suffered a severe cut on the head, Patrick H. McGovern, 38, motorman of the train, assisted in the rescue work until doctors ordered him to the hospital. McGovern rolled down the embankment with the derailed car while Lawrence Bordeen, conductor, was thrown off the rear platform and suffered only minor bruises.

Statements taken by authorities from witnesses to the crash agreed that both Bushey's automobile and the train, eastbound from Waukesha, were traveling fast when they reached the crossing. A 12-year old boy, Mitchell Murdzia, was standing near the waiting station when the automobile was hurled against the small structure. He suffered from shock but was otherwise unharmed.

Had Attended Fair

Bushey, authorities learned, was returning from Elkhorn, Wis., where he had attended the fair with two of his three sons, Worth and Cameron. The youths had returned earlier to their home here while Bushey, a horse racing enthusiast, stayed for the last trotting event. They were waiting to have supper with him when they learned he was killed.

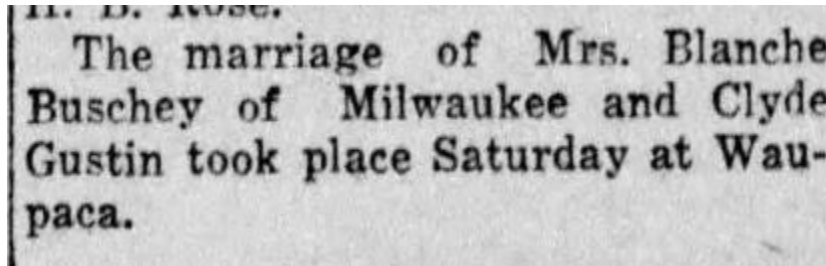

Bushey, for 21 years operator of Bushey's business college at Appleton, Wis., had been employed here the last three years as salesmanager for the Spencerian business college. His widow, Mrs. Blanche Bushey, has been on a vacation at Waupaca with their other son, Warren.
