TUSCANIA SURVIVOR TELLS OF CONDITIONS IN WAR HOSPITAL

Charles Bennet, Who Is "Invalided" Across Seas, Writes to Folks at Home Relating Experiences; Changes His Mind About Asking for Transfer to Navy; Rather Fight Foe That He Can See.

Private Charles Bennett, a Tuscania survivor, who is ill in an American hospital "over there," tells of the after effects of the sinking of the transport. The soldier also writes about the conditions and the excitement across the pond.

His letter follows:

In American Hospital,
Rest Camp, Feb. 13, 1918.

Dear Aunt and Grandmother:

I am not very well but am getting along pretty good and expect to be out the last of the month. Well, I am now abroad but did not land in the fashion I had expected. I happened to be on the ship that was torpedoed on Feb. 5 in the Irish sea. I had a narrow escape and lost all of my belongings, but am thankful to be here and will be a real fighting man when I get up.

I received your cake and the clothes on the eve of the departure from the good old U. S. A. and the cake sure was fine.

I am flat on my back and will have to remain so for at least ten days. I do not suffer much pain when I lay on my back, but it sure is tiresome.

I have had a taste of war to be in it as things are different here from in America and I hope that many more of our young men enlist and come across. Airplanes are flying over us continually. The Red Cross does a lot of good work over here, so the fellows say. The English artillery is drilling outside and they sure do make a lot of noise.

I have no idea when we will get our pay as we signed up on the boat, but as the papers were lost I expect quite a delay. I heard that the United States went wild over the sinking of the transport on Feb. 5.

I was not sick in the least on the way over as far as we went. I was thinking that the navy would be better for me, but have changed my mind. I want to fight an enemy I can see.

Well, hoping this finds you all well, I remain,

Yours as ever,

PRIVATE CHAS. G. BENNETT,
Co. E, 6th Bn. 20th Engineers,
A. E. F. Via New York.

EDNA BENNETT MILLER FAMILY

My mother, Edna Bennett, was born in Beaver Dam, Wis. on Feb. 5, 1892 to Henry W. Bennett and Margaret Anger Bennett. Grandfather was nearly a full-blooded American Indian. Grandmother was of the Stockbridge-Munsee tribe which was a remnant of the Mohicans, but she was also  $\frac{1}{2}$  English as her father, John Anger was a full-blooded Englishman coming to America directly from England.

Edna was second in a family of 15 children. Death was not uncommon to this household. She used to tell sad tales of how her 3 little brothers, Peter 3 weeks, Mark 3 months, and Henry 11 months, died while living on the Redsprings reservation near Gresham. Later while residing in Rusk County she lost 2 sisters, 10 year old Victoria and 15 year old Isabelle.

In 1905 while the family was still in Redsprings, mother entered St. Joseph's Academy, a Catholic Boarding School in Green Bay completing her freshman-sophomore high school years before going to Oshkosh to live. About 1909 they moved to Rusk County settling in the Rusk Farm area.

Edna enrolled in the Rusk County Normal School in the fall of 1910 but was forced to leave after a few months to help out at home due to the illness of her mother following the birth of her youngest child, Genevieve, in Dec. The next fall she resumed her teacher-training graduating in June, 1912. While at Ladysmith, she lived with the R. B. McDonald family.

Theodore Miller, from the town of Washington and Edna Bennett were united in marriage in 1914. Their first home built by my father was located near our Miller grandparents; my brother and I were born here. When I was less than a year we moved to a drier climate for mother's health, returning from our Montana home in 1919.

Father established a garage business in Weyerhaeuser in August, 1920 and Mother accepted a teaching contract at Oakland School (@$125.00 per month plus the Apker Residence in which to live. (She had received $40.00 per month at this same school 8 years previously.) My brother and I accompanied her to school daily with father joining us weekends; I often wondered how she managed with 72 pupils enrolled that year!

We liked to hear mother tell of her heritage. My great-grandmother, Elsie Anger compiled a history and handed down stories to us. "The Old King" and "The Romance of Wa-Bé-No-Kiew Morning Star," were 2 of my favorites. Princess Morning Star was the great-grandmother of Elsie Anger who died in 1936 at the age of 84.

In 1928 my parents moved into their new home on Highway 8 adjoining the old Creamery which my father had purchased and remodeled for his garage business which he continued to operate until his death in 1960. Mother died in 1946 following surgery. Their five children were: Donald, Della Koehler (myself), and Judy Schwellenbach of Durand. By: Della Miller Koehler
