OKLAHOMA YOUTH

INSPECTS SUBS

IS AN ELECTRICAL EXPERT

Passes on Equipment Installed in Uncle Sam's Underwater Fighters.

Special to The World.

WALTER, Okla., Sept. 22.—An Oklahoma young man is telling Uncle Sam whether the electrical equipment of his new submarine has been properly installed. A graduate of the Agricultural and Mechanical college at Stillwater, a postgraduate of an eastern mechanical college. Clay Woodson, son of Judge B. M. Woodson, editor of the Walter New Era, has advanced to, an important post with the government, being headquartered at Pittsburgh, Pa., and having as hi sterflory that in which numerous plants in Pennsylvania and adjoining states are filling contracts for the United States.

The position is one of the most responsible coming under jurisdiction of the shipbuilding board, for should the slightest part of electrical mechanism be improperly placed it might mean not only destruction of the submarine, but a loss of American seamen. The duty of young Woodson is to be on hand when a submarine is completed, and if it passes his inspection it is ready for service.

A Star Athlete.

Woodson while a student in the A. & M. college became one of its star athletes and bore the distinction of being the first student in that school to break into some enviable records held by the university. After completing his course he was sent by the government into northwestern states to inquire into the cause of explosions in threshing machines. Frequency of such explosions caused the charge to be made that enemies of the government of the manufacturing company putting out the threshers were responsible.

After examining a few threshers and witnessing some explosions Woodson found that the cause lay in a vacuum formed between a metal barrel rim and the cylinder that revolved in the center, the explosion being due to the acumulation of dust. He remedied the defect in mechanism and had his device patented.

The Westinghouse Electrical company learned of his genius and sent for him to come east. He was given a position with that company and retained it for several years, resigning only a few months ago to enter the employ of the government. He was married a few months ago to a young woman of Hollis, Okla., who was a boyhood sweetheart.

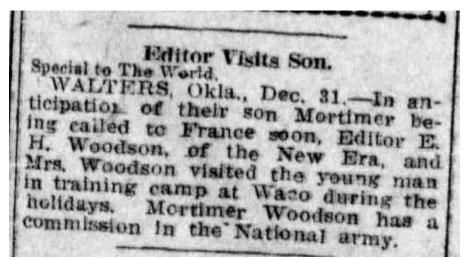

Likes Farm Life.

'Clay has done well," says Judge Woodson. "yet he is not satisfied. He was reared in the open and wants to get back to it. He likes the freedom of the west and its farm life." Mortimer Woodson, youngest son of the west son of Mortimer Woodson, youngest son of the Walter editor, whom a good many western Oklahoma people will remember as a lleutenant of his father during the time the latter was experimenting in agriculture near Alfus a few years ago, has a commission as second lieutenant in the army and is stationed at Waco, Texas.

stationed at Waco, Texas, Judge Woodson's farm experience was an interesting thing. After having been county-judge, a member of the territorial senate and a prominent lawyer for several years, he left the bright lights and hid himself on a farm that boasted of a dugout for a house. For two years he and Clay and Mortimer were practical farmets. Every clear night thru a crack in the wall came the light of a little star. It was their star of hope, they said. It may have proved so. Judge Woodson sold the farm for $6,000 cash, realizing a nice profit, and his companions have risen to conscientious and responsible positions in their country's service.

FOUR MORE A. & M. BOYS ARRIVE IN FRANCE

Word has just been received that Lieutenants Norris G. Hark, Geo. Ross, Joe Nelson and Mortimer Woodson have safely arrived in France.

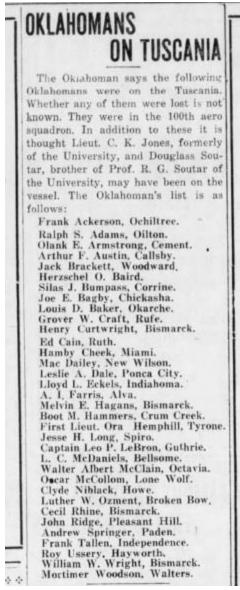

These four A. and M. men have been stationed this fall in the artillery at Camp Macarthur. Waco, Texas. They were among the sixteen best officers chosen from that camp to take several months training abroad, and return to our camps to give instruction in European warfare. The men had a day with their home folks, after which they reunited at St. Louis and reported at Hoboken, New Jersey, the 5th of January, where they were located for two weeks before sailing.

It is thought their training will be observation of the artillery in action from airplanes.

Many Thanks to All

It was a most trying and distressing experience for ye editor and wife Thursday, February 7, 1918, when we had the first intimation that our son, and youngest child, Lieutenant Mortimer Woodson, was aboard the army transport Tuscania, that was torpedoed and sunk off the North coast of Ireland at 6 o'clock p. m. on Tuesday, February 5th, 1918. We had an idea only that he was en route to France from New York and the suspense was terriffic and words cannot adequately express it. We waited for further news and at 3:30 o'clock p. m. on February 7th, a call from the Rock Island railroad station in Walters said, "cablegram." The first words, "Landed safely; telegraph Clay" (his _brother who is working for the government at Pittsburg, Pa.,) and signed "Mortimer Woodson," were the sweetest words We received we ever heard. an official confirmation of his saftey from the Adjutant General Saturday night, so we now know all is well with him and John E. Dinwiddie, who were the only Walters boys on this ship. We scan every newspaper for bits of news concerning this fearful work of war, and we are sure that he is well cared for and that every comfort and necessity for those brave boys are provided. We have had no other direct news from him as yet and likely will not have for many days. Every body knows the facts concerning the sinking of this ship so we pass that up now and will give all inside information as soon as we get it. From what we can learn all the Oklahoma boys acted like well trained soldiers and brave men.

Since recovering from the shock we have and do feel so thankful for his rescue that we cannot find time nor will power to hate anything or anybody. Everyone has been unsparing in their good wishes and congratulations, and they are coming by telephone, telegraph and letters, and from almost everywhere. So we take this opportunity to extend to all friends and good wishers, our most sincere and heartfelt thanks for their kind words and assurances which we know are true and sincere.

American Camp in England, letters. I had just written a Dear Father:

I suppose you wonder why I have not written before this, but you see as soon as I landed my Captain went to London and left me with 108 ship-wrecked soldiers to clothe, feed and house, besides make out a thousand different records about every one of them-I thought that I had worked a little before in my life, but I found out that I had never seen anybody that had ever worked. I never sleep and seldom eat.

I was sailing on the fated ship, Tuscania. It was a fine ship and we had a nice voyage —as far as it went. We saw land that afternoon about four o'clock. It looked so good that it inspired me to write some February 13, 1918. letter to you and was about half way through with another when Fritz got us.

Our life boat got away safely and we were on the water about three hours before being picked up. There was quite a sea running and at times I felt like the negro of the ship's crew who walked out on to the deck beside me. He looked out into the water for a few mo-ments and then said, "Oh, for old Tennessee !"

The trawler that picked us up was undoubtedly the roughest riding, and yet the dearest boat I ever road on. We land-ed at Larne, Ireland, a pure Irish village. Can you imagine everything green, with flowers blooming and children bare-(Continued on page four)

Lieut. Woodson Writes Letter From England

(Continued from page one) footed in Northern Ireland in February? The people in Larne treated us the finest a person could be treated; in fact the British officers and citizens have treated us wonderfully since our informal arrival.

This afternoon General Bliss and Ambassador Page talked to all the survivors, and met all the officers. We seem to be enjoying quite a distinction, and I hope we will retain it.

I hope no one else will ever have to go through such an experience. Personally, I suf-fered nothing but the loss of $400.00 worth of equipment, but I saw much suffering.

This country of England is a great country-for the travel-er. I do wish you could see its castles, cathedrals, etc. Well, I am tired so will close.

Please send this letter to Clay until I can write to him. Tell all my friends that I had written them a letter but it is on the bottom of the North Channel. There is a lot more that I can tell you when I get back to the States. I hope that I will not have to go back before it is all over, over here, because I owe Fritz a debt and I want to pay it before I leave.

I will write you my address later. I hope you got my cable-gram O. K. and that every-thing is fine at home. Affectionately your son, MORTIMER WOODSON.

Three letters from our son, Mortimer, from somewhere in France states that he is greatly in love with the country and splendid, generous people, who seem to never tire in their efforts to please the Americans. Anyone wishing to write to him may address as follows: "Lieut. Mortimer Woodson, A. P. O. 727, A. E. F., France." He will appreciate your letters.

From Tuscania to France

A. P. O. 718, France, June 1, 1918. Dear Mrs. Kent: In the last letter 1 I received from McNeely he enclosed your letter of March 23. It was certainly a treat to me. I had heard no news from the school or any of my friends since I left Camp McArthur, Waco, Texas, on January 1 this year. I was shifted around so much before I finally reached here that I practically had no address.

You may possibly be interested in some of my maneuvers since I left the good ship Tuscania one evening last February. I spent three hours "joy riding" in a lifeboat on a high I was picked up by a trawler sea. and taken into port at Larue, Ireland. The people there sure treated us fine. The town was ours, and practically everything was free. I hated to leave that place. We came across to Win-chester, England, where we "rested" for eight weeks. While I was resting I had to make out new service recodrs, new insurance ullottments and about a thousand other things, for every man in my company. I took time out and went to London five days, and several other places, beside this I had one square meal in England, so you see the time was not all lost. After I came over to France and got rid of my company I spent about a month dodging "swivel chair" soldier jobs and got here to school. Geo. Ross, Joe Nelson and Norris Harp, who came east with me last winter, had been here and were just finishing up. We put on a party. During the evening we stood up and sang "O A. M. C." and gave a boom-erah. Possibly the school never thought of having "O. A. M. C." sung in this French village.

I was interested in what you said about war brides. I sure think you are right. As for French war brides, tell 'em all they need not worry. I don't think a sane American will marry over here unless he is drunk or suffering from shell shock. The American girl is the ONLY girl in this world. I was glad to hear that a number of our boys made good in the third camp. I hope they don't have to wait long for their commissions. You are right, a commission means a whole lot to a person. An American officer's uniform is a passport to any society in the world. This is sure valuable to a person sometimes.

I will be through school here in about three weeks. I will sure be glad. I like this school and this is a beautiful country, but I want to do something. I think I have about served my time going to school. We go from here to the front. I may be able to write you something of interest later.

I hope you have a nice summer and also hope that the school doesn't turn into a kindergarten. Please give my best regards to my friends. I would enjoy hearing from you. As ever, MORTIMER WOODSON,

The above laconic telegram from our soldier son, Mortimer, who has been in New York a few days waiting for orders to sail to France a second time on a hurry up call. He will hardly go now, we think. The telegram was short, but meant volumes as all the world at that moment was wild with joy over the signing of the armistice by the Germans. то Ċ say it was a joyous greeting is meager. 0 ly described. He was in New York City on the 7th of November, when the world went wild over the fake announcement of peace; nothing could describe the delight, the frenzy and abandon of the people over the joyful news.

Benjamin Nelson Woodson belongs to a family which originated in England and came to the Virginia Colony in 1620. He received his preliminary education in the public school at Honey Grove, Fannin County, Texas, and was subsequently graduated from Pritchett College, Glasgow, Missouri, in 1875, receiving the degree of proficiency. Later he entered the law department of the University of the City of New York, where he was graduated in 1876, at which time Ulysses S. Grant, Junior was sworn in, although a graduate of Columbia University. Returning to Hone y Grove, Texas, Mr. Woodson engaged in the practice of law, and was elected state's attorney for

Fannin County, an office he retained for two terms. On April 22, 1889, he removed to Oklahoma City and engaged in the practice of his profession, remaining there for five years with a full measure of success. He was the representative of Texas on the famous committee of fourteen that was selected at the mass meeting in Oklahoma City to survey and lay off the city into lots and blocks, streets and alleys, and took an active part in all the public affair s of the city until he left for Kay County. He was chairman of the committee that settled the contest on the Gault 80 of the city. In 1893 he went to the Cherokee Strip, where he was appointed county judge by Governor Renfrow, a capacity in which he acted to the end of the term and lived there for seven years, and in 1901 came to Kiowa County, Oklahoma, where he opened an office for the practice of his profession in Hobart. While there he was honored by elect ion to the last Territorial Senate, the twelfth session, in which he represented Kiowa and Washita counties, in 1904. After five years in Kiowa County, Mr. Woodson removed to a ranch and proved up a homestead in the south end of Greer County, which afterwards became Jackson County, this property being situated nine miles from Altus. He was there elected county judge i n 1911 and served as such two years, and January 1, 1913, came to Walters and purchased the W alters New Era, a democratic organ which had been founded in 1901 by J. A. Stockton. The success which has been attained by Mr. Woodson in his journalistic work would seem to prove, as claimed by many, that editors, like poets, are born, not made. The qualities which make a successful journalist are inbred and no amount of study can supply the lack of a keenness of observation, acute perceptions of the tastes of the public, and accurate judgment on matters treated in various newspaper departments. While it has a respectable foreign list, the New Era circulates principally in Cotton and the neighboring counties, and is the democratic organ of Cotton County, as well as the official city paper of Walters. The commodious and well-equipped offices are located on Broadway, and are fitted with all appliances and machinery to found in the modern newspaper and printing office. A stalwart democrat from the time of attaining his majority, Mr. Woodson was secretary of the first democratic organization ever established in Oklahoma, at Oklahoma City. He was likewise chairman of the county central and territorial central committees there, has helped to organize the party in five different counties in Oklahoma, and has been very active in all state and county conventions. He is both a forcible writer and eloquent speaker, and his voce and pen are always at the service of his party; as they are also at the command of movements which promise advancement and progress in the affairs of his city, county and state. Mr. Woodson has long been a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and is at present superintendent of the Sunday school. His various fraternal connections include membership in the Knights of Pythias and the Woodmen of the World. Of recent years he has disposed of all his farming interest, and now devotes himself un reservedly to his journalistic duties and his political activities. Mr. Woodson was married in May, 1880, at Glasgow, Missouri, to Miss Nellie COCKRELL, who was born at Glasgow, Missouri , daughter of the late Maj. H. Clay Cockrell, who was a major of reserves in the Union army during the Civil war. Mrs. Woodson, a graduate of Pritchette College and of the Southwestern Conservatory of Music, has been prominent in club, religious, charitable and social work, and is at present secretary of the Oklahoma L.T.L. Six children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Woodson: Lalla is the wife of John KEITHLEY, a banker and agriculturist of O'Fallon, Missouri. Marion Marle, a graduate of the Agricultural and Mechanical College, at Stillwater, Oklahoma, is now a commercial salesman, with Lexington, Kentucky, as his home. He was for a number of years at the head of the demonstration department of agriculture of the State of Oklahoma, and as such in charge of the exhibits of the state in the Dry Farming Congress in Lethbridge Exhibition, in Canada, in 1912. Benjamin Nelson, Jr., is manager for the Emerson-Brantingh am Implement Company at Kansas City, Missouri. James Clay graduated May 28, 1915, from the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Oklahoma with the degree of Bachelor of Science. Genelle Attended the Agricultural and Mechanical College, Stillwater, Oklahoma, and is now a teacher in Walters public schools, and John Mortimer will graduate from that institution with the class of 1917.

Quite a Surprise.

The many friends of Miss Lala Woodson were surprised to hear that at the hour of 8 o'clock, by the Rev. Geo D. Willingham at the home of her parents, she was united in marriage to J. M. Keithly, Jr., of O'Fallon, Missouri.

Miss Woodson has since the opening of Hobart been employed as one of the teachers in the schoo's here, and was considered a very efficient teacher. They will go from here to St. Louis on their bridal tour, after which they will settle down in O'Fallon, the home of the bridegroom.

The first annual commencement of the Newkirk Branch of the Western Conservatory of Music, was held in the Christian Church last Saturday evening.

After the invocation the first number was a choice selection by the Conservatory Superba string band.

The piano duet by Miss Effie Weislogel and Mrs. Woodson was well rendered.

Miss Aline Neff's piano solo "Happy Birdling" showed much study and practice on the part of Miss Aline.

The Violin duet by Mrs. Endicott and Will Norton received hearty applause. Miss LallaWoodson, the graduate, rendered several choice Piano selections in her usual pleasing manner and was heartily enchored. Miss Lalla graduated with highest honors and was very highly complimented by Prof. E. H. Scott, of Chicago, Illinois, who presented her the diploma.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodson are to be congratulated on having such an accomplished daughter.

Mrs. Woodson, the teacher, has just cause to feel proud of her class and which reflects with great credit for her musical ability.

League Literary Meeting. . The Epworth League of the M. E. church, South, met in regular literary session last evening at the nice and pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton. The program had been fully prepared, and was rendered in an excellent and profitable manner. After the opening eng and pasyer our study of Lord unnyson was opened in an exquisite and charming manner, by a solo "The Brook." rendered by Mrs.Woodson, in her usual accomplished style. Rev. Parks then gave an interesting talk on the life of Tennyson - in interesting sketch of his life, character and disposition, from early youth thro' all his literary life. After many interesting quotations from the great man's work, revealing his true life and soul, the lesson, "In Memorium," was read by Frank Stewart, in which we found room for deep thought in trying to discuss the many noble truths contained therein We were then favored by a recitation from Tennyson by Miss Lalla Woodeon in her modest, refined and cultivated style, which together with the sentiment made it very impressive. A song was then rendered by Mr. Moritz in an effective and expressive manner, doing full justice to the beautiful composition. The League will be entertained next Thursday evening at Hotel Whittington. An interesting program will be propared and we hope for another profitable as. well as pleasant meeting.

The First Broken Link

We are pained to chronicle the death of our little grand daughter Alberta Keithly, of O'Fallon, Mo., our daughter Lalla Keithly's child, who died in a hospital in St, Louis, Sunday, Mar. 16th. This is the first death in our family. We have raised six children, four boys and two girls. Mortimer, our baby boy is all that is now with us, three children married and three single.

Mrs. Woodson is now with our daughter to afford all possible comtort in this hour of sorrow and incontrollable grief. The end came suddenly, tho' not unexpected. All that loving and devoted souls could do was done to save her life but to no avail. Such is the great tragedy of this life, Death seems to love a slining mark, and is no respector of persons.

The dear little one gave promises of a happy and useful life. , Surrounded by devoted Christian parents and relation, with all the comforts and conveniences of life necessary for the good of any one, with loving hands to administer to every necessity, hopeful want and parents with fond anticipations of many days of happiness and pleasure in her development into full fruition of this life. While she leaves some little sisters to mourn her loss, no parents ever have one to spare, and the lost ones seems to be the most loved ones in the family. No little spirit ever took its flight to the brighter world surrounded by more devout Christian influences and loving hearts. We are sure God in his tender mercies will soon heal the broken hearts and comfort the bereaved ones in this hour of grief.

Behind the Door of Delusion is the memoir of a journalist whose friends committed him to an Oklahoma mental hospital in the early 1930s in a desperate attempt to cure him of alcoholism. It is a powerful and uncommon social commentary on Depression-era America that provides insight into political and economic forces affecting a neglected underclass.

First published in 1932, the book was attributed to "Inmate Ward 8," posing few problems for eastern book reviewers who cared nothing about the author but wished merely to attack or defend modern psychiatric practices. West of the Mississippi, however, the identity of "Inmate Ward 8" was better known, inasmuch as journalists who reviewed the book recognized the author as one of their own. The inmate was Marle Woodson, a brilliant scholar and versatile athlete in college, a man who became one of the nation's youngest college presidents before launching an impressive journalism career.

For all its merit as a social document, its value as history or literature, Beyond the Door of Delusion mirrors tragedy in more ways than one - through Marle Woodson's vignettes of fellow inmates and through Woodson's reflection on his own life and the prospects for his future. . .

I loved this book. What an incredible read and published in 1932. Depressing and startling; interesting main character with so many problems -- but not unusual for many people. Brilliant author!

Marle Woodson's book reminds the reader that we are all human beings, with the same hopes and dreams, whether we are on the "inside" or the "outside" of the hospital walls. His story describe his stay in an Oklahoma hospital as a last resort to defeat his alcoholism. The book is not a sensationalist tale, but rather a telling record of his days spent on Ward 8. What I found compelling was his honesty as he contemplates his existence in the past, the present, and the future. His words are touching and sometimes humorous. I wish I could have met Mr. Woodson. This is a book for readers who are interested in how other people think.

BRILLIANT WRITER DIES

(U. Okla.. 6. VINITA. Oct. P.)-Woodson. brilliant Marion Marle writer. died late yesterday in the Eastern Oklahoma Hospital, where he had himself committed two years ago to recover from dipsomania. Funeral services will be held here tomorrow. Woodson, who was 54, lost his life to cancer of the arm and lung, after having regained his mental health and established one of the few existing inmates of the mental libraries for asylums.

Mortimer Woodson, brother of the writer, has been here from Dallas TX since learning of the seriousness of his brother's illness. Marle had cancer.

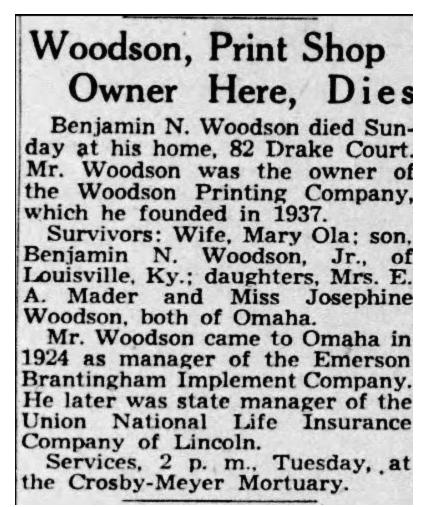

"Daily Oklahoman" (Oklahoma City) 6 Oct 1933 p 4 – Marion Merle Woodson, age 54, author & newswriter, who spent most of the last 3 years battling insanity in the Eastern Oklahoma Hospital in Vinita, died 5 Oct 1933. He waged war and won against mental disorders, including dipsomania. He died of an incurable growth just 7 months after a Tulsa judge restored him to full citizenship. He was a feature writer for the "Tulsa World" in 1931 when he had his friends commit him to the hospital. His book, "Beyond the Door of Delusion," was published anonymously as the work of "Inmate, Ward 8." It is used in college sociology classes.

He broke his arm last summer while on a brief holiday with one of the hospital's doctors. When it failed to heal, it was discovered that he had a sarcoma of the arm, shoulder & lungs. Although he was in intense pain, he was not despondent. His hope was that the Marle Woodson Library at the asylum would be completed. It is composed only of used books but it is the only library in an Oklahoma institution for mental patients. He spent a year acquiring books and developed a simple lending system; it now has several thousand volumes. Marle was a graduate of Agricultural & Mechanical College. He was the head of the Connell School of Agriculture at Helen at age 29 – the youngest college president in Oklahoma history. He was on the Associated Press staff as a correspondent during the Balkan Wars & in India, and worked at numerous newspapers in the US. His burial was in the Oklahoma City Cemetery.

He was survived by his mother Mrs. Nellie Woodson, brother Mortimer Woodson of Dallas and sister Mrs. Glen Dark of Oklahoma City.

A Wedding of Interest.

The following item taken from the Cotton County, Okla., Democrat, is of local interest, as Mr. Dark is a brother of Mrs. A. L. Heck of this city, and Mrs. A. C. Fluber of Richards, Mo.:

Mr. Glenn Dark and Miss Genelle Woodson were married at the home of the bride's parents in Walters, Ok., yesterday morning at 8 o'clock in the presence of a few immediate relatives and friends, Rev. B. M. Nelson of the Methodist church officiating.

Mr. Dark is one of our most promising young business men. About five years ago he started with the Oklahoma State Bank as bookkeeper. By honesty, efficiency and strict attention to business he won promotions until he is now cashier. Few young men in this or any other county are more highly respected and admired than is Mr. Dark. He is sober, industrious, morally clean, a Christian young man, possessed of all the qualifications that go to make a good husband and a good citizen.

Miss Woodson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. N. Woodson. Since coming here a few years ago she has won a host of friends who have come to love her for her many noble traits. She is intelligent, accomplished and refined and seems to possess a cheerful, sunny disposition which is so much desired. She has taken an active part in the church work of the town and is a member of several of the social clubs. She has been one of the able and efficient teachers of the county.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Dark were driven to Lawton by Mr. and Mrs. Dick Dark.

and Colorado and return home via Kansas City within ten days or two weeks. The Democrat joins with a host of friends in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Dark a long, happy and prosperous married life.
