TWO MORE BUTTE MEN ON TUSCANIA TRANSPORT ONE SAVED, ONE LOST

In addition to those reported on the ill-fated transport Tuscania as being among the lost or saved are two others who were heard of yesterday. One is Charles Scott Patterson, a Butte boy, who spent all the 32 years of his life here up to the time he went into the service. He enlisted in the engineer corps, after which he got the commission of second lieutenant. He is a son of H. M. Patterson, formerly a prominent architect of Butte, and who is now making his home in Los Angeles. The father received word by cablegram yesterday that his son was safe, and sent word to Butte to that effect.

Among those still missing, though not credited to Butte, is First Lieut. Clifford Wellington Waller of the engineer corps. In the list of the missing he was credited to Fenton, Mich. Mr. Waller was a resident of Butte for many years and worked at the Tramway mine. When the war started he went to Spokane to enlist, but was rejected. He came back to Butte and resumed work at the Tramway. In August last he made another trial, this time at the officers' training camp at the Presidio, San Francisco. He made good and secured his commission, and was on his way to the scene of war when the Tuscania was torpedoed.

Young Waller had many friends in Butte, especially among those he worked with at the Tramway. The reason for crediting him to the Michigan town was that his nearest relatives live there.

FRIENDS ARE PLEASED AT SAFETY OF WALLER

Confirmation in the Standard's dispatch that Lieut. Clifford Waller had been saved from the Tuscania disaster was received with joy by the many Butte friends of the young man yesterday. He had entered the service through enlistment while working at the Tramway mine. In the first published list of those missing he was mentioned, and credited to Michigan, where his nearest relatives reside. After two days the government dispatches added his name to the list of those saved. Lieutenant Waller had made his home in Butte for four years before entering the service, and had worked around the mines, principally at the Tramway.

LAW RISKEN IS SAFE IN FRANCE

No Truth in Rumor That Transport Had Been Sunk on Way Over.

BIG GALE IS ENCOUNTERED

Lifeboats Lost in Storm May Have Been Sighted and Picked Up.

Letters were received yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Risken from their son, Law Risken, who was formerly reporter on the Standard in Anaconda and is now in France with supply company 305 of the quartermaster's corps. He writes:

"We had a fair trip across the water, though it took rather a long time. I was seasick for several days after we encountered the stiff gale and storm on our second day out. However, after the gale I felt fine and soon found my 'sea legs.' Of course, there were happenings and sights on the trip which I am not allowed to describe.

"Have already been encamped in two French cities and have had good views of the country and customs, which are interesting to me, but are now becoming common sights.

Greeted by Boys.

"The night we pulled into the dock we were first greeted by a bunch of small French boys in a row boat, who pulled alongside our huge ship and gave us a broken-English version of 'Tipperary' and 'The Star Spangled Banner.' Of course, we had to drop cigarettes to them in exchange for their entertainment. The French are great smokers, and the cafe, where they sip wine, beer and cognac, is the favorite gathering place.

"You have read and heard a great deal about the French architecture, which is truly wonderful. In the place where I am now is an old 'chateau' which carries historical tales galore, and which you have no doubt heard about. There are other places of interest and beauty here in (deleted), which is one of the oldest cities in France. Was downtown last night and took a good look around the place.

"French 'poilus' and officers, German prisoners of war, Russian soldiers, French-Algerian soldiers as well as numerous airplanes and dirigibles flying colors of the allies are now common sights to us.

News of Anacondans.

"I was talking to an engineer yesterday and found out that he knew Luke Gervais, and that he had left this place and a few days before I came. I then met a Sergt. Allan Ross, who at one time lived in Anaconda and who was with Clint's outfit in England. He was forced to leave that bunch when they came to France. He was a 'bunkie' of Clint's at one time, and he showed me several pictures of Clint. He also knew all the other Montana boys. I had a long talk with him today.

"As for myself, I am feeling fine. The weather is nice here now; it's warm in the daytime and cool in the evenings. We are well taken care of in every way, and the health of the soldiers is watched at all times."

A Coincident.

A week later he writes:

"A sort of funny incident came up the other day. I was talking with a Lieut. C. W. Walker, who is a Tuscania survivor. He was telling me of the affair. The next day I got a Standard which had a picture of him and a story of his connection with the torpedo ship. During my conversation with the lieutenant I didn't learn that he was from Butte. I looked for him yesterday, but he had left this place.

Lieutenant Waller, who was commissioned at the second training camp at the Presidio, is a graduate of the University of Michigan, having a degree as a mining engineer. He is with the heavy artillery. He is a son of Manley W. Waller, a man prominent in affairs in Detroit.

Last night, Mr. and Mrs. Brack gave a supper party at the Palace Hotel in honor of their daughter and Lieutenant Waller.

Ona a 'Very Special Agent'

By MIKI CLEMENS
Staff Writer

At age 73, Ona Waller of San Angelo has become the national toast of the real estate firm she works for - and was honored at the Better Homes and Gardens national convention in Boston recently.

Mrs. Waller, a Realtor with Wallace A. Moritz & Associates, Realtors/Better Homes and Gardens, was made the first "Very Special Agent" of Real Estate Service, the parent organization for Better Homes and Gardens, by its president Allen Sabbag.

As over a thousand realtors from across the nation applauded, Mrs. Waller approached the podium and with her characteristic good humor addressed her peers:

Here lies Ona Waller.

She worked early and late.

She beat us all to heaven.

And listed the Pearly Gates.

Her distinction is due to her drive and success in the real estate business, a third career which she started at age 73.

Sabbag summed up much of her success as he addressed the audience at the convention:

"Born in 1905, this person has the drive, enthusiasm and ambition of a sales person half her age - 29 years a school teacher and 20 years selling encyclopedias door-to-door, she is on her third career.

She has only been selling real

"She has only been selling real estate since she was 73 years old. She is a million-dollar producer, a member of the Medallion Club, has attended all our conventions and she has also earned her GRI (Graduate, Realty Institute) designation."

Ona, on the other hand, attributes her success to her bosses and co-workers.

"Wallace Moritz and Steve

Very Special Agent Ona Waller addresses her fellow Realtors at the convention.

Eustis (now owner of Wallace A. Moritz & Associates, Realtors/Better Homes and Gardens) hired me and had faith in my abilities," Mrs. Waller says, "and I really appreciate the younger associates accepting me."

As a matter of fact, Mrs.

As a matter of fact, Mrs. Waller says "age has not been a hindrance particularly in real estate."

She has listed over $1 million this year but attributes it to "wonderful acquaintances and friends who have supported me in the firm. Without them I don't feel I would have been so successful."

Tom Crowley, sales manager for the local firm, said Mrs. Waller has been a million-dollar producer two years in succession and is ready to do the same for the third year.

Mrs. Waller was born in Texas, raised in Oklahoma and has lived in various parts of the country.

She has a masters in education from Southwest Texas State Teachers College in San Marcos and has two children, a daughter (who sparked her interest in the real estate business) in the pharmacy business, and a son who's head of missionaries for the National Episcopal Church in New York. She has three grandsons and one granddaughter.

After her husband died, she decided to make San Angelo her permanent home.

"San Angelo people are so beautiful," she said. Her church, Emmanuel Episcopal has also been a great source of strength through the years.

through the years.

But if one asks Ona Waller right off the bat something she is really proud of, her career as a teacher, a county school supervisor, a real estate salesman or volunteer work, Ona's liable to come up with something to make you chuckle, such as, "Well . . . when I was in high school I was the Oklahoma state tennis champion!"

At 87, Ona Waller remembers how irate her father became when Congress gave women the right to vote.

As a former teacher starting out in the 1920s, she remembers when female teachers were not allowed to be married and were forbidden to smoke, drink or dance.

Regardless of the time period that she grew up in, Waller "never let anything get in my way."

She attended Oklahoma A&M college in 1922 and received a teaching certificate, which could be obtained after only two years. At that time, women only went to college if they wanted to become teachers, she said.

She met her husband, Clifford Waller, a traveling salesman, a career that lent itself to at least a few jokes. She joined him on the road and saw a great deal of the country with him.

field of education since she first became a teacher over 70 years ago, and not all were changes for the better, she added.

She remembers how children once idolized Charles Lindbergh. "Children have no hero today," she said.

"Teachers need to have the right to discipline and teach values," she stated.

Waller began her real estate career in 1978. Her husband had died several years before and she had retired from the education field the year before, but she decided it was time to get back to work.

Her career as a Realtor has been a highly successful one as she has received numerous awards in the field. She has been with Scott Allison Real Estate for over a year.

"God has taken care of me," Waller said. "I enjoy working with people. I enjoy seeing young couples get their first home."

She later received a bachelor's degree and then a master's degree in 1961 from Southwest Texas State University.

She taught school in several locations before she and her husband settled with their two children in San Angelo. She retired from the Tom Green County School District in 1977 after serving as cooperative supervisor.

TERRENCE WALLER OBITUARY

Terrence Waller
Terrence "Terry" Waller, aged 86, died peacefully in Portland, Oregon on January 31st, 2009.

Terry was born in San Francisco, California on September 22nd, 1922 to Dorothy Louise and Clifford Waller.

He spent most of his adolescence in La Grande, Oregon and attended La Grande High School. After studying at Eastern Oregon University and University of Wyoming, Terry joined the Marine Corp in 1942, trained as a naval aviator and was stationed in Japan at the end of World War II. Following his military service he attended the Montana School of Mines, receiving a B.S. in Mining Engineering in 1952. In 1948 Terry married Leota "Kit" Carson of Pinedale, Wyoming, his wife of over 60 years. Terry worked as a mining engineer in Butte, Montana, Lead, South Dakota, and Challis, Idaho before moving with his family to California in 1956 to take a job with the Bureau of Land Management (BLM). Terry came to Trinity County in 1956 to assist the BLM with clearing mining claims that would be submerged once Trinity Lake was established and subsequently he and Kit settled in Redding. In 1970 Terry retired from the BLM to work as an independent mining consultant and to pursue other passions including an unsuccessful run for the California State Legislature. In 1980 he and Kit took up permanent residence in Trinity County where they lived for over 20 years, retiring to Portland, Oregon in 2004.

Terry will be deeply missed by his family and friends. He was a warm-hearted, independent man, who took pleasure in his family and friends, in literature and the outdoors. Although he had epilepsy from early adulthood, he never allowed that circumstance to dampen his enthusiasm for new pursuits. Terry lived and worked throughout the West, but Trinity County was home.

Published by Redding Record Searchlight on Feb. 12, 2009.

Terry is survived by his wife, Kit Waller, son Keith Waller and daughter-in-law Karen Wening, daughters Carson Legree and Kim Waller, son Peter Waller and daughter in-law Susi Marzuola, and by six grandchildren; Keir Legree, Rachel Legree, Peter Waller, Haley Waller, Leona Waller and Jimmy Waller. A memorial service will be held in Trinity County in the spring of this year, when the weather is suitable for an outdoor gathering.

Note the obituary of Terrence Waller does not mention his half-siblings by his father's 2nd marriage - <https://www.legacy.com/us/obituaries/redding/name/terrence-waller-obituary?id=12709279>

Cliona Angela Waller

April 1, 1934 ~ February 25, 2023 (age 88)

Obituary

On Friday, February 25th, 2023, Cliona Angela Waller, loving mother of two children, passed away at the age of 88.

Angela was born April 1st, 1934 to Clifford W. and Ona Scott Waller, at Shannon Hospital in San Angelo, Texas. She later attended Del Mar College and Texas Women's University, majoring in Russian Studies. She married her first husband, Elgie Victor Raymond, in 1954, raising two sons, Reid and Victor. Angela and Elgie separated in 1973, and later divorced.

Angela was an intellectual and creative person. She was an artist, showing talent in painting and graphic arts, working as a commercial artist when she met Elgie. She also read avidly, including poetry, literature, and non-fiction. She was particularly inspired by the work of Pablo Neruda and other South American and Latin American poets, collecting their works and the writing of authors from around the globe. Angela had a practical side, working as an independent contractor as a means of supporting herself, beautifully remodeling homes for many years. Fiercely independent, she regularly read the Sunday New York Times, followed current events closely, and considered herself a political liberal. In 2005, she moved to Albuquerque to provide care for her grandson, Frederick Swiftbird Raymond, until his death in 2015.

Angela was preceded in death by her mother and father, and her ex-husband. She is survived by her sons, Reid and Victor, and her brother, Clifford Scott Waller.

A visitation and Episcopal funeral service will be held on Tuesday, March 7th, 2023 from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. at FRENCH - Westside. Donations may be sent to Planned Parenthood of the Rocky Mountains.

Father:

Harvey E. Dunn, a farmer, and Manley W. Walter, brickmason, both of Montrose, both corroborated the testimony of the preceding witness in regard to the language used by Shoup in Carman's saloon on Dec. 16. Cross examination developed nothing important. On re-direct of Dunn he was asked if Shoup was drinking at the time and was dancing a jig, which called out an objection that the court sustained. Mr. Clapp thought a man's actions in such a case were always admissible evidence.

Son Held Guilty In Fraud Attempt

FLINT, Nov. 12—Hazen M. Waller, former Genesee County register of deeds, was guilty of fraud in attempting to acquire property at 107 W. Eighth, once owned by his father, Manley W. Waller, according to a decision reached by Circuit Court Judge Paul Cash of Clinton and Gratiot counties.

The deed to the property given Hazen Waller by his thrice-married father, with the understanding it was to be deeded back to him but not recorded in a move to keep subsequent wives from getting the property, was set aside. The property will be turned over to Graydon C. Withey, administrator of the Manley estate, with proceeds to be divided among all heirs.

The court found that the son did deed the property back to his father but he so garbled the description that it conveyed nothing, according to the judge.

FLINT PRIMARY QUIZ NEAR END

Judge Expected To Report Findings Of Inquiry

(By The Associated Press)

Flint, Oct. 2.—Grand jury investigation of the primary election held Sept. 4, which has been conducted for the last two weeks by Circuit Judge James S. Parker and which has resulted in 12 men being held on conspiracy charges and two of the 12 on burglary and larceny charges, was believed today to be practically at an end. Except for the possibility of calling of one or two witnesses, Judge Parker was believed ready to begin preparation of a statement of his findings.

Frank D. McKay, state treasurer, was the last witness to appear before the grand jury Monday afternoon. He came here from Lansing at the request of the judge and remained closeted with him for about an hour and a half.

Only two persons remain to be arraigned on the conspiracy charge. They are Hazen Waller, register of deeds, for whom a warrant was issued Monday but who was not arrested because his wife was seriously ill in a local hospital, and George Dusenberry who was chairman of one of the election boards.

Officers said they had been unable to locate him.

Roy O. Perry, deputy secretary of state, in charge of the Flint automobile license plate bureau, and Louis D. McGregor, defeated candidate for the Republican nomination for prosecuting attorney, arraigned yesterday on the conspiracy charges, were held under $2,000 bail each. Perry waived examination and McGregor stood mute and Justice Frank W. Cain set his hearing for Oct. 5, the same date on which Mayor William H. McKeighan is to have a hearing on the charge of conspiracy and also on one charging him with breaking and entering the city hall in the night time and stealing ballots.
