CALIFORNIANS SAVED REACH FOURTEEN

Word of Men Surviving Tuscania Disaster Comes Through Various Channels; None of San Joaquin Boys Listed in the Fourteen

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 8 — Fourteen Californians are now on the lists of those known to have survived the torpedoing of the transport Tuscania. Word of their safety came through various channels—some in the fragmentary official list of survivors and others in private dispatches.

Eugene A. Welch was the latest name to be added to the list of California survivors, a cablegram having been received from him by relatives here today. It was also learned today that Barth Burke, Olympic Club athlete supposed to have been on the Tuscania, was not aboard.

The list of California survivors now include: Lieut. Rex Arnold, Martinez; Private Earl Blair, Placerville; Private John Fleming, Oakland; Lieut. J. N. Hall, Los Angeles; Private H. A. Keeler, San Francisco; Sergeant H. A. Kelley, San Francisco; Lieut. Frank Maker, Oakland; Lieut. E. D. McNear, Petaluma; Private David Poe, Laytonville; Private Walter Risley, Alameda; Private M. L. Roberts, Venice; Lieut. C. W. Schweissinger, Los Angeles; Private J. A. Wood, Wrights, Santa Cruz county; Lieut. E. A. Welch, San Francisco.

Wishes She Were Man To Help Out Her Son

This is the message of Mrs. Julia A. Welch, 1279 Seventh avenue, mother of Lieutenant Eugene A. Welch, Engineers, unattached:

I wish I were a man—I'd be over there to help my son out!

I thought Eugene was in France, for he cabled us "arrived safely." The first information we received that he was aboard the Tuscania came from the "Examiner."

I am overcome with joy to hear that he is really safe—we certainly feel happy.

My boy gave up his position with the State Highway Commission to enlist last May, as he was anxious to go. He's only 23 years old.

That'll be the last boat they'll get—I hope.

Two Soldiers Tell of Escape From Tuscania

Lieut. E. A. Welch and Julius Janetsky Write Letters on Narrow Escape From Diver.

Two San Franciscans writing home of their experiences as soldiers with the American Expeditionary forces tell of the Tuscania destruction.

Below are letters from Lieutenant Eugene A. Welch, engineers U. S. R. detached, to his mother, Mrs. J. W. Welch, 1279 Seventh avenue, and Julius Janetsky, One Hundredth aero squadron, to his mother, Mrs. J. Janetsky, 335 Fifth avenue.

Janetsky in his letter says:

I lost everything—came off the ship in my shirt sleeves. Some cold. I feel sorry because I lost quite a few good plans of mine. I was sitting on my bed waiting for my supper and at 5:30 o'clock, BANG! The lights went out. It was as dark as night. Up on the deck I went. I waited two hours upstairs to get down. Then we had to fight for ourselves. I waited for a submarine chaser. Then I took a rope and swung to it. Then the Germans aimed another torpedo at the chaser. They just missed it by inches, thank God.

by inches, thank God.

Lieutenant Welch says:

You know, of course, that I was saved when the Tuscania went down. I want to state right now that the British subjects wherever we went, Ireland, Wales and England, gave us a most hearty welcome. Also the American Red Cross has done everything it could for the survivors of the Tuscania. They have given us clothes, loaned us money without any talk of interest or terms of repayment. If you can ever help the American Red Cross do so and tell your friends to do so.

I had a wonderful experience, an experience I would not want to miss and also an experience I never want to go through again. Mostly all our men were saved by British destroyers coming up alongside the vessel.

Before we are through we will show old Bill where he gets off.

The news of the coming marriage, which it is understood will take place after Easter, is one of the season's happy surprises, the popularity of the bride in social and sorority circles making it particularly interesting.

Miss Sullivan has hosts of friends here where she was educated and where she claims membership in the local chapter of Omega Nus. She is active in charity work.

*Invitations Issued for Wedding
 At St. Francis Church*

Miss Ella Sullivan has chosen Apr. 12 as the date of her wedding to Eugene A. Welch, and invitations to the marriage have been sent out by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Sullivan.

The ceremony is to be performed in St. Francis church.

Attending the bride will be Mrs. J. Giles Miller, as matron of honor, Miss Cora Conner as maid of honor, and Miss Patricia Sullivan as flower girl.

Paul O'Shaughnessy of San Francisco will be best man, and Geo. McKeever and Geo. Warrack, both of San Francisco, will act as ushers.

Mrs. Roy Hibbitt entertained at bridge tea for Miss Sullivan, Saturday afternoon. Easter lilies with huckleberry were used to decorate the rooms.

The guests were Mesdames Carr Anderson, Markham Johnston, Wesley Martin, Wm. Kiessig, J. Giles Miller, Wm. E. Hibbitt, Henry Booth of Portland, Henry Weston, Leo Attridge, Barton Branstetter; Misses Caroline Meek of Marysville, Kathryn Smart, Merle Weston, Pauline O'Neil, Ruth Anderson, Ella Sullivan, Irene Rooney, Cora Conner, Nell Uren, Mildred Conner and Otis Gruhler.

Mrs. Miller will entertain at bridge next Saturday for Miss Sullivan.

SOME five hundred guests were assembled this morning at the St. Francis Church at Twenty-sixth and K Streets to witness the marriage, at a nuptial mass, of Miss Ella Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Sullivan, and Eugene A. Welch of this city. The hour for the service was 8 o'clock and Rev. Father Humilis officiated.

Miss Geraldine Genshlea gave as the wedding song Gounod's "Ave Maria," and accompanied other parts of the service with song.

The church and altar had been quite elaborately done in white blossoms and a quantity of greenery. The flowers were lilies and bridal wreath, and they found a fitting background in the trailing smilax and fern.

The bride was attended by her niece, Patricia Sullivan, as a small flower girl; by Mrs. J. Giles Miller as matron of honor, and Miss Cora Conner as maid of honor. The ushers were George McKeever and George Warrack of San Francisco and Paul O'Shaughnessy, also of San Francisco, accompanied the groom as best man.

At the appointed hour the familiar strains of the march from Lohengrin announced the approach of the bride on the arm of her father, by whom she was given into the keeping of the groom.

The bridal robe was of the conventional white satin. It was fashioned on straight lines, with just a touch of silver lace and silver ribbons. The skirt was short, and there was no train. The veil of white tulle fell just to the hem of the skirt. It was caught to the coiffure with a wreath of orange blossoms, and a high ruche covered the head at the back. The bridal bouquet was a pretty arrangement of mauve-colored orchids and lilies of the valley.

Little Miss Patricia Sullivan, who followed the two ushers at the head of the bridal party, wore a frock of palest blue organdie ruffled to the waist, and her flowers were carried in a basket.

Mrs. Miller also wore organdie. Her gown was of the tea-rose shade and was girdled with blue satin. She wore a large hat to match, and her flowers were mixed Spring blossoms in a basket.

Miss Connor wore orchid organdie and taffeta. Her hat was of orchid, and with trimmings of ribbon of blue, tea-rose and orchid. Her flowers combined the three shades, and were carried in a French basket.

The bride's mother wore an afternoon gown of gray Canton crepe, beaded with jet in a pattern, and a large hat of black completed her outfit.

The groom's mother wore blue Georgette over gold cloth and adorned with a beaded pattern.

Following the wedding service a breakfast and reception took place at the Sullivan home, with the more intimate friends and the relatives of the couple participating. The decorations here carried out the colors suggested in the gowning of the attendants, blue, tea-rose and orchid, and a large centerpiece of the blossoms in the combined shades adorned the breakfast table.

Mr. and Mrs. Welch are leaving to-day for a honeymoon, the destination of which they are not telling, but they will return after a fortnight to take up their residence in a pretty flat at Twenty-second and H Streets.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding to-day were Dr. and Mrs. T. W. Conley of San Francisco; Messrs. Edward McCarthy, George Hampton, F. M. McAuliffe and Harry C. Lucas, all of the Bay city; and Mr. and Mrs. John Welch, parents of the groom, from Los Angeles.

JOHN SULLIVAN, EX-POLICE CHIEF, DIES IN HOSPITAL

Pneumonia Attack Proves Fatal To Old Resident Of Sacramento

John E. (Black Jack) Sullivan, long time Sacramento political figure, twice the chief of the police department and for the last twenty years the state inheritance tax appraiser for this district, died in the Mercy Hospital to-day after a sudden attack of pneumonia.

Sullivan, a native of Rhode Island, came to Sacramento in 1880 and began as an upholsterer in the Southern Pacific shops.

Joins Fire Department.

His ability to lead men soon won him an official post on the city's volunteer fire department and from this beginning he rose in 1897 to deputy county assessor under Thomas Berkey.

When George Clark became the mayor in 1900, he appointed Sullivan chief of police, a position he held until 1904, when Clark was defeated for the mayoralty.

Again in 1908 when Clinton E. White was elected he made Sullivan his police chief.

Resigns Post.

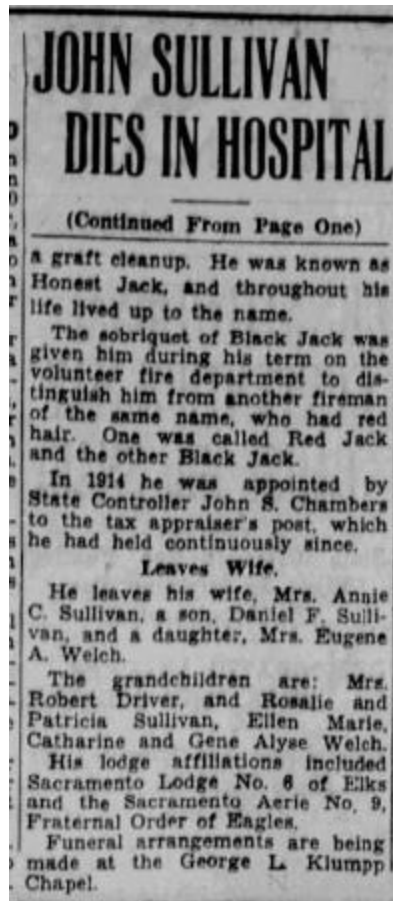

Sullivan resigned from the position in 1910 to enter the hotly contested mayoralty fight against M. B. Beard. Beard beat him at the polls and Sullivan retired from active political life to open his own insurance and real estate office, which he actively managed almost to his death.

Sullivan was known and loved as one of the city's most honest and courageous fighters. During his two terms as police chief it was said that never a breath of scandal was heard of him.

Was In Cleanups.

His terms both came at a time when the city was in the throes of

Loyd McCormick

Loyd W. McCormick

Adored by his family, Loyd W. McCormick passed away peacefully on August 28, 2014, after a rich life of 85 years marked by a 58-year loving marriage and a 40-year distinguished legal career.

Born in 1928, focusing on academics as a young man, he attended the University of California at Los Angeles at age 16 and initially studied to become a physician. After changing his major from pre-med to political science, he transferred to and graduated from University of California at Berkeley. Following graduation, he served in the U.S. Navy in the Korean War as Lieutenant (JG). Loyd earned his law degree from Boalt Hall School of Law, University of California at Berkeley, and began his legal career in 1956.

He practiced law for 40 years at McCutchen, Doyle, Brown & Enersen (now Bingham McCutchen) and served as senior partner and on the executive committee. He participated in the firm's expansion to an international law firm helping to open the Bangkok and Taipei offices. He specialized in general business litigation, corporate securities litigation, antitrust litigation and general affairs of agricultural cooperatives. He tried cases in state and federal courts in California and Hawaii and litigated before the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Trade Commission and the California Public Utilities Commission.

A successful trial lawyer and pioneer of agricultural cooperatives, Loyd was honored with many professional distinctions including the American College of Trial Lawyers, American Judicature Society, The Conference Board, International Conference Board, Asia Foundation, Agriculture Committee of the State Chamber of Commerce, UC Berkeley College of Natural Resources Advisory Board, and Committee on California Agriculture and Higher Education. A force in the legal field, he was also selected as a lawyer representative by the Northern District of California to the Ninth Circuit Judicial Conference, serving as chairman, and the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives in Washington, D.C., chairing the Legal and Taxation Committee.

Loyd's major clients included Allied Grape Growers, Amfac, Blue Anchor, California Cannery & Growers, California Raisin Growers Association, California Tomato Growers Association, Caymus Vineyards, Castle & Cook, C&H Sugar, Farmers' Rice Cooperative, General Brewery Corporation (Lucky Lager), Heitz Wine Cellars, Ingelnook Winery, Jardine Matheson, Monterey Mushrooms, Peach Growers Association, Queen Emma Foundation, and Weibel Winery.

A natural in the courtroom and board room, Loyd also stood out as a gifted mentor, counselor and advocate for many McCutcheon lawyers who worked for him. He was known in the office for showing an active interest in developing his protégés' careers, delegating substantive work to them, and giving them responsibility so that they could succeed in the firm.

He took pride in his professional accomplishments but he also enjoyed competitive sports. As a lefty, he played three varsity sports at Venice High School – football, basketball and tennis. Loyd quarterbacked the football team and captained the tennis team. He shared his passion for tennis with his family and devoted many weekend hours teaching his children the game and playing family tournaments with them.

Throughout his life, Loyd was actively involved in his community and many organizations. As an undergraduate, he loved fraternity life and served as President of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon at UCLA. With his love of politics, he served on the Contra Costa Republican Central Committee and as President of the Lafayette Young Republicans. Dedicated to quality education, he guided Sleepy Hollow Parents' Club as President, sat on the Board of Directors of Boalt Hall School of Law Alumni Association and served as an associate of Golden Gate University. At the Sleepy Hollow Swim & Tennis Club, he led the organization as President. He also enjoyed his memberships in the Orinda Country Club and the Pacific-Union Club.

Loyd valued family more than anything else. In 1955, he met the love of his life, Jeanne Welch, on the dance floor at the Berkeley Tennis Club. They married in 1956 and were in love for 58 years. Together, they raised three children in Orinda instilling in them the importance of family and guiding them to be the best they could be.

Loyd will be dearly missed by his loved ones. He is survived by his loving wife Jeanne McCormick, son David McCormick, daughter Janet Riley, son-in-law Ben Riley, son Ken McCormick, daughter-in-law Karla McCormick, grandchildren Keith Riley, Ana McCormick, Jamie Riley, Trent McCormick, John McCormick and Kendall McCormick, brother Larry McCormick, sister-in-law Dietra McCormick and many nieces and nephews whom he loved dearly. The family is deeply grateful to Francesca Allen for her extraordinary help in recent years, providing constant comfort and care. The McCormicks also wish to thank the many loving and capable staff at LARC, Aegis of Moraga and Hospice VITAS.

A Celebration of Loyd's Life will be held on Friday, September 12 at the Orinda Country Club at 12:00 p.m. for friends and family.

In lieu of flowers and in honor of Loyd's love for the University of California, Berkeley School of Law, donations can be made to Boalt Hall Fund in memory of Loyd W. McCormick.
