◆◆◆ PENDLETON MAN ON TUSCANIA WRITES OF VESSEL'S SINKING

Another Pendleton man, other than John Doane, was aboard the steamer Tuscania when it was struck by a submarine's torpedo but the fact was not known until today when Frank A. Stroble received a letter from Walter A. White, who formerly worked for L. E. Twitchell, relating some of his experiences. White belongs to Co. D 6th Bat. 20th Engineers.

His letter was written from "Somewhere in England" and says in part: "Well, I'm here. Some of the boys are not. We don't know just how many are lost. You must know that we were on the first American troopship to be sunk. I was one rescued by a destroyer and did not even get wet, for which I was truly thankful, but I lost everything I had except what I had on, even my mackinaw. We will stay here until we get fully equipped again. Don't know how long that will be. The boys are all anxious to get to France and get to work."

He says that all the records of his company were lost which means that before they could draw pay copies must be sent from Washington. He says that it is common belief in England that the war will be over this year.

White is about 43 years old. His name, given in the list of survivors, was listed as Oliver White.

Pendleton Man on Tuscania

Pendleton, March 14.—A letter received Tuesday by Frank Stroble from Walter A. White of this city, revealed that the latter was aboard the transport Tuscania when she was sunk. His name had been given in the list of survivors as Oliver White, and none of his friends knew that he was aboard the ill-fated vessel until his letter arrived. He was a member of Co. D, Sixth battalion, Twentieth engineers. He writes that he was rescued by a destroyer without even getting wet, though he lost all of his clothes except those on his back.

Visitors, including the manager of the Sonoma county fair at Santa Rosa, echoed the sentiments of the judges and termed the floriculture building a modern garden of Paradise.

The five big $150 first prizes in floriculture went to Mariko Sumida of Monterey for the best Oriental garden; William B. Skowran of Carmel Highlands for the best commercial orchid display; Nan's Nursery of Pacific Grove for the best patio garden; Alex Eddie's Garden Shop of Monterey for the best formal garden; and the Carmel Valley begonia gardens for the best floral setting using water.

HON. OLIVER C. WHITE.

This biography must detail very briefly the eventful and successful life of one of Olympia's respected citizens, a stockholder and director in the Capital National Bank, and also a pioneer of 1850. Oliver C. White dates his birth on December 1, 1846, near Dubuque, Iowa, and was but seven years of age when his father arrived in Olympia, the country then being a dense forest.

Mr. White is proud of an ancestry of mingled Welsh, Scotch and English blood, which is the combination that has made the progressive and invincible American nation. The first American ancestor of the White family came over in 1745 in search of a lost brother, whom he never found. His sons were participants in the Revolutionary war; some of the family resided at Wyoming at the time of the famous massacre by the Indians, and the great-grandmother of our subject was carried off by the Indians, but was afterwards released, and lived to the age of ninety-four. Mr. White's grandfather, John White, was a native of New York, and his wife was also born in that state; they became pioneers of the state of Ohio.

Their son, Charles White, was born in Hamilton county, Ohio, in 1823. He married Mary J. Clements, who was born in 1828 at Springfield, Illinois, where her father's family had settled in 1822. He had learned the trade of cabinet-maker, carpenter and joiner, and had settled at Dubuque, Iowa. From there, in 1849, he joined a company consisting of the family of his father, and with ox-teams they started across the plains to Oregon. They spent the winter near Council Bluffs and in the early spring of 1850 set out upon their journey. In September they reached the beautiful Willamette valley, and there Mr. White's father took up a claim of six hundred and forty acres. Mr. White had brought with him his wife and two children, one of whom became the wife of Rev. A. J. Joslyn and now resides at Ballard, Washington. Mr. White worked at his trade in Dayton, Oregon, and in 1853 came to Olympia. Five more children were born on the coast: Carrie, who became the wife of Robert Larimer, and resides in Los Gatos, California; Frank C., residing near Eugene, Oregon; Nettie, who died when a child; Ione, who became the wife of John C. Story, and died in 1877, leaving a son, Mark Story; and Charles, who lives at Eugene with his parents. Mr. White is now in his eightieth year and his wife in her seventy-fifth. He was reared a Democrat, but at the time of the Civil war he became a Republican. Among the various minor offices which he has filled are those of city marshal, coroner, sheriff and assessor, always taking an active interest in all the affairs of his community.

Oliver C., whose birth has been mentioned above, was educated at Olympia and The Dalles; he lived with his parents till his nineteenth year, but had been self-supporting much before that time, acting as newsboy, clerk, guard in the Oregon penitentiary, logger and mill-hand, farm-hand, and as general roustabout. In 1871 he located at Dayton, Washington, where he lived for eighteen years; for five years he taught school; for four years was county auditor; was clerk of the district court three and a half years; for nearly two years was president of the territorial board of penitentiary building commissioners. He resigned this position to take his seat as member of the last territorial legislature in 1887-88. He was one of the six delegates to the Chicago convention of 1888 and in March, 1889, was appointed territorial secretary by President Harrison, serving in that place until statehood was granted. He refused to accept the nomination for secretary of state, although there was no opposition.

..... and became man-

Mr. White removed to Olympia in November, 1889, and became manager of the State Printing & Publishing Company. He was appointed the first state printer on the establishment of that office, was elected to the same office in 1892, and met his defeat in the landslide of 1896. In 1879 he had purchased the Columbia Chronicle at Dayton, and with the exception of three and a half years, conducted it until 1890; during this time he had performed every part of the labor of "getting out" a country paper, from the place of "devil" to that of chief editor. During his residence at Dayton he was member of the fire company, mayor, town trustee, school director, president of the board of trade, chairman of the Republican county committee, and a member-at-large of the Republican territorial committee.

Mr. White was married at Dayton on February 19, 1875, to Susan J. Rainwater, a native of Arkansas; her father was John K. Rainwater, who came to the coast in 1861. There are three children: Walter A. is married and lives in Olympia; Will R. is in Seattle; and Mary H. lives at home with her parents. The family have their home at the Olympia Hotel, and he spends his leisure time looking after his business interests and in overseeing a fruit farm, which he has near the city. He has always been an active Republican and recalls that when a boy he carried a torch in the campaign for Lincoln, although his father was a Democrat.

Mr. White belongs to the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and to the Masonic fraternity; is a Sir Knight and a past commander. He became an Odd Fellow in 1870 and is past grand master and past grand representative, having represented the jurisdiction of Washington in the Sovereign Grand Lodge for eight years. This sketch is but a very brief record of the active and useful life of this worthy and eminent citizen, who has done so much for the advancement of the interests of his city, county and state.

AT GROUNDBREAKING

Nurse Chief Will Be in Spotlight

BY EVELYN DE WOLFE

Times Staff Writer

Mrs. Mary Arbury, night nurse supervisor at Childrens Hospital, will be in the spotlight today at groundbreaking ceremonies for a new $10 million hospital structure.

The fact that 76-year-old Mrs. Arbury witnessed the groundbreaking of the hospital on Sunset Blvd. 52 years ago, when she was a pe-on Castelar and Alpine Sts. Funds were meager. The children ate from tin plates and the beds were warmed with hot bricks," Mrs. Arbury relates.

Mrs. Arbury has a feeling of pride and satisfaction in the knowledge that "I had a little to do with the hospital's ago, when she was a pediatrics trainee, is only part of the reason she was invited today as a special guest of the hospital's board of directors.

A Big Thank You

"It's the hospital's way of saying thank you to a fine and devoted nurse," says the hospital's director of nurses, Louise C. Woermbke. "We wish we had a dozen Mary Arburys. She symbolizes the fine reputation and continuity of this institution."

The veteran nurse, whose plans for the immediate future do not include retirement, remembers well the early days in 1912 when she was an affiliating student nurse from California Lutheran Hospital.

"Facilities were very crude at the original Childrens Hospital site
