Y. M. C. A. BOYS HAVE RETURNED FROM CAMP

Forty Members of Junior Department of Association Spend Two Weeks
At Demorest.

After one of the most delightful outings, forty boys, members of the junior department of the Young Men's Christian association, returned to Atlanta Tuesday night from their annual camp at Lake Demorest.

The trip was thoroughly enjoyed by all, the camp having included a number of excursions to points of interest. Mount Yonah, the Nacoochee valley, Tallulah and Toccoa Falls were visited by the members of the party.

The camp was in charge of Physical Director T. R. Weems, of the association; R. M. Forster, Dr. John Seiddell and O. R. Harvey, directors of the boys' work.

The boys in the party were Frank Pearson, Robert Redding, John and James Dunwoody, Roy and Walter LeCraw, Dan Woodward, Rudolph Loeb, Arthur Lippold, McCrea French, Montgomery Francis, George West, Marcus Clayton, James Tiller, Everett Wrigley, L. P. Thomas, Courtland S. Winn, Jr., Basil M. Woolley, Jr., Clarence Jordan, Charlie Beadley, W. H. Brotherton, Jr., Ashby and Jeff McCord, McIntosh Burns, John Russey, Albion Cowles, Avary M. Dimmock, DeWitt Bowen, Sidney and Herbert Metzger, Harold Hagan, John Hudgin, Arthur Bass, Lyle Motley, Maxwell Rahner, Lewis Blodgett, Clarence Harrison, Thomas C. Hopkins, Keese Dunnwoody and Albert Phillips.

LILLIAN JONSON AND COURTLAND
WINN, JR., TAKE ESSAY TROPHIES

Beautiful and Appropriate Colonial Exercises Are at the Girls' High School in Honor of D. A. R.

After reading the three essays sent to them, the committee of the Joseph Habersham chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution decided that the essay written by Lillian Johnson, of the literary course 3A, was the best. Honorable mention was given to the essays of Jeannette Victor, of 2E, and Grace Howell, of the English Commercial High school.

As the D. A. R. offered the loving cup which was presented to Lillian Jonson for her article on "The French in the American Revolution," instead of the regular Georgia day program on Friday, February 10, 1911, the girls of the G. H. S., under the supervision of Miss Converse and Miss Moore, gave a representation of a meeting of the original D. A. R.'s in the old colonial times.

All the colonial dames were there in flowered, hoop skirts, with tiny, crisp caps pinned on their powdered hair. Old songs, like "Wait for the Wagon," and "Bendemeer Stream," were sung. Tea was served in true colonial style. The following girls took part in the play:

WINN WINS AT THE B. H. S.

The handsome medal offered by the Habersham chapter of the D. A. R. for the best essay written upon the subject, "The French in the American Revolution," was won by Courtland S. Winn, Jr., of the third B classical, and is to be worn by him for one year.

Eleven students wrote for this essay medal and many good compositions were handed in.

The students of the two third grades, and also the other essay writers, held a meeting at which Winn read his essay and received the medal from Professor Dykes. Winn has also been invited to read his essay before the Habersham chapter at its next meeting.

Winn's essay was an excellent composition and one that bespeaks conscientious work and literary ability. The committee awarded the medal to Winn because of the historical accuracy, grasp of subject and literary excellence that characterized his essay. Winn has an impressive and vivid style and we hope that he will continue to write for the other essays medals that are offered.

Owing to the fact that the illness of Miss Hornady prevented her from arranging a program and that the Girls' High school could not accommodate both schools, the Boys' High school did not celebrate Georgia day as planned.

THIRD B CLASS B. H. S. HOLDS JOLLY BANQUET

The third B class of the Boys' High school held its first annual banquet Thursday night at the Aragon hotel. Twenty-one of the class were present, including Prof. R. C. Little.

The menu was some class, and, needless to say, everybody did full justice to it. Here it is: Little neck clam cocktail, cream of chicken princess, red radishes, salted almonds, green olives, broiled Spanish mackerel, butter sauce; potato straws; broiled squab chicken on toast, stuffed tomatoes; cardinal punch, tenderloin of beef aux champignon, green peas, baked mashed potatoes, Waldorf salad, strawberry ice cream; assorted cakes; Roquefort cheese, toasted crackers, demi tasse.

After all had choked enough of the viands to supply a boarding house for a week and the table looked like Sherman had marched across it on his way to the sea, Toastmaster "Parson" Henley took charge of affairs. Henley was in good spirits, and after several remarks which brought down the house, called upon Professor Little. He was followed by various speeches from each member present, most of which were in the form of boasts for next year's class. All of the boys were urged to return to high school to complete the four-year course, and most of them signified their intention of doing so. Mr. Goldsmith was heard from on the subject, "How to Hit the Prep League Pitchers," while Winn, Patterson, Ed Broyles, and several others made the welkin ring with their flights of eloquence.

Before breaking up the boys decided to elect officers for the class, and the following were chosen: President, Stanton Henley; vice president, Gordon Hill; secretary, Courtland S. Winn, Jr.

The members then adjourned to meet again at the B. H. S.-Marist game on Monday, July 5.

DID YOU RECOGNIZE YOUR SON
DRESSED AS PLUMED KNIGHT OR DUSKY SLAVE, IN OPERAS?

By Howell Foreman.

Sons of Georgia played a more prominent part in the engagement of the Metropolitan Opera Company at the Auditorium last week than is generally known. In perhaps every single opera no city in the world was better represented than Atlanta in the whole dramatis personae. From the green grass pastures of Kentucky came Dick Martin; from the classic banks of the rolling Rhine came Carl Jorn; from the olive slopes of sunny Italy came Enrico Caruso; but from Atlanta and Georgia came that all-important contingent, the "supers."

Indeed, it was a watchful parent who from behind ostrich plumes and stove-pipe lids recognized the family blood in the favorite son as he strode across the stage in the train of Caruso or faithfully guarding Scotti amidst scenes foreign and unfamiliar, wearing a pair of No. 9 sandals on a pair of No. 5 feet and No. 17 Elizabethan ruffe on a No. 13 neck.

Their Sons Had a Part.

There were many prominent citizens in the audience who gazed with wonder and admiration at the Egyptian temples in "Aida," or the mountains of Biscaya in "Il Trovatore," and knew not that the dusky slave who with palms from the banks of the Nile gently fanned Radames or that the armed knights of Manrico were their own kith and kin. For while the elders held sway in the audience, the younger generation was on the other side of the curtain.

On the super list of the recent operas there appeared, for instance, such names: Courtland S. Winn, Jr. (son of the mayor); Ashby McCord (son of H. Y. McCord); George L. Bell, Jr. (son of the Atlanta judge); Tom Barrett (student at Tech and son of the mayor of Augusta); Spencer Callaway (son of President Frank Callaway, of the Atlanta Baseball Association); Robert Maddox, Jr. (son of the ex-mayor); Harry Woodward (son of Park Woodward); Hal Reynolds (son of Walter Reynolds); Claude Daley (son of President W. R. Daley, of the board of education); W. C. Matthews (son of L. C. Matthews); Louis Lester (son of E. C. Lester); George Harrison, Jr. (son of the city officer); W. S. Greene; John E. White, Jr. (son of the minister); Jack Cohen (son of Major John S. Cohen); sons of Linton C. Hopkins, Sam T. Werman, Clark Howell and of other well-known men of Atlanta, Savannah, Charleston and other towns.

T. H. S.—E. H. S. STUDENTS GRADUATE THURSDAY

Thirty in Classisal, 26 in Commercial and 18 in the Technical

BY CHARLES M. DAVIS.

The graduating exercises of the Boys' High school and Technological High school will be held Thursday evening, 8 o'clock, at the Atlanta theater. The graduating classes of the two schools are unusually large, and the senior class of the Boys' High school is the first that will complete the new four years' course. The class of 1911 was small, because there were no representatives from the literary course, but this year the senior class, numbering 30, will make the largest graduating class of the two schools in the history of the Boys' High school.

The speakers for the occasion have been chosen, and their speeches are already well learned and eloquent. The speakers from the Boys' High school are Robert Morris, valedictorian, and Howell Foreman, class orator. Joseph Frankel will represent the business department. The representatives from the Technological High school are Macartan Campbell Pollock, valedictorian, and John Pittman Sutton, class orator.

The senior class of the Boys' High school is the class that undertook the Alciphronian and then carried it through to such success. This class is composed of a number of brilliant students and boys that have taken an active part in the affairs of Younger Atlanta. The business department has a number of worthy representatives. The Technological school will graduate a class which will be well prepared to enter any of the technical schools in the country.

Mr. W. R. Daley, president of the board of education, will deliver the diplomas. The graduating classes of the Boys' High school and Technological High school are as follows:

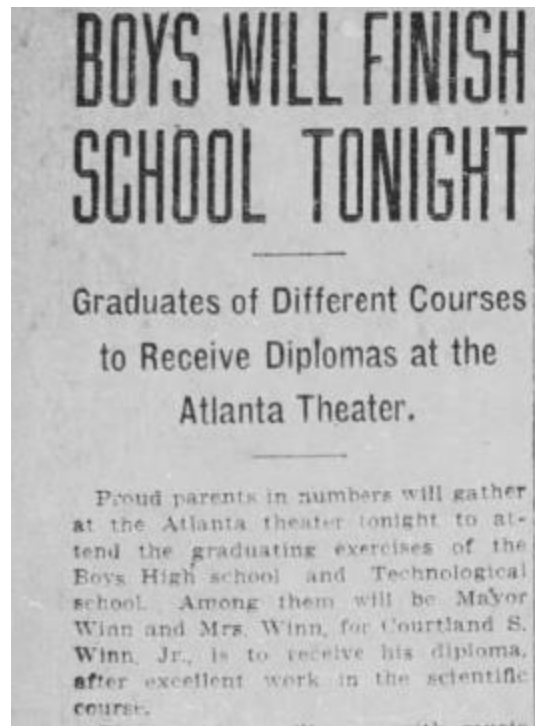

BOYS' HIGH SCHOOL.

Classical Course—Isadore Abelson, Albert J. Andrews, George Lester Bell, Jr., Eason J. Bond, Hewitt W. Chambers, Clarence N. Crocker, Charles Milton Davis, Charles Irwin Ennis, Evan Howell Foreman, Ames Fraser, Paul Faver Greenfield, Carl Pinson Goldsmith, Gershon Hadas, Stanton Henley, John W. Hill, Hal Hulsey, Louis Lester, William Wyckliffe Masters, William C. Matthews, Robert Cornwall Norris, Asa J. Patterson, John Wesley Russell, Jr., Lewis A. Pinkussohn, Anderson Hoke Swann, Gaines W. Walter.

Athens, Ga., May 22.—(Special.)—Ninety-and-nine is the number of the senior class at the University of Georgia this year (exclusive of the law school), the largest class, despite the conditions which seemed to threatened college attendance last fall, in the history of the state institution.

Eighteen of the whole class are from Atlanta; four are from Savannah; three from Macon, and four from Augusta.

There are 46 completing the regular course in arts; 26 in agriculture; 14 in science; 4 in civil engineering; 3 in forestry; 3 in the Peabody school of education, and 1 each in architecture, electric engineering and commerce.

There are forty-one additional in the membership of the senior class. This brings the total of the seniors to just 140. There has been a total enrollment of 1,678 in all the departments of the university in Athens, including 654 in the summer school. There are in all the branches of the university—various institutions over the state—4,559 students registered this year.

These figures were given out today in the register for 1914-15, which has just come from the binders.

Villanow; Frank Crawley Ward, Lumpkin; Audley Alexander Waters, Woodcliff; Eugene Weatherly, Athens; William Gibson Webb, Athens; Robert Wright Wesley, Lumber City; Henry Haynes West, Athens; Linton Burnside West, Cuthbert; George Stephens Whitehead, Carlton; Courtland Simmons Winn, Jr., Atlanta; James Ralford Wood, Savannah; James Fletcher Woodall, Woodland; Homer Wright, Jr., Grantville, and Gustavus York, Quartz.

The students of the Lamar School of Law of Emory university yesterday adopted a constitution and elected officers of The House of Contention, the debating society of the law school. The society was formed for the purpose of discussing obscure points of law as well as the ordinary run of debating subjects. The newly elected officers are James Tipton, of Dublin, president; Marvin Orier, of Dublin, secretary; Courtland S. Winn, Jr., of Atlanta, vice president; J. W. Steele, of Atlanta, treasurer; W. W. Haden, of Atlanta, censor, and T. W. Floyd, chaplain.

COURTLAND S. WINN, JR., young Atlantian, who was on board the transport Tuscania as a member of a special forestry regiment. Young Winn is the son of former Mayor Courtland S. Winn. His father and mother have wired* the war department for information as to his fate.

No Word in Washington On Young Winn's Fate

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Efforts are unavailing to ascertain the fate of Courtland S. Winn, Jr., of Atlanta, who was aboard the Tuscania when she was torpedoed. Mr. Winn who is a son of former Mayor Winn, was a member of company D, Twentieth engineers. He enlisted several months ago. Congressman Howard made efforts today to get information at the war department concerning Mr. Winn, but no word has been received as to his fate.

COURTLAND WINN, SON OF EX-MAYOR, WAS ON TUSCANIA

Popular Young Atlantan's Fate Is Unknown— Was Attached to Twentieth Engineers

Courtland S. Winn, Jr., the son of former Mayor Courtland S. Winn and one of Atlanta's best known young men, was on the transport Tuscania, sunk by a German submarine.

As yet his fate is not known, although his father has wired Secretary of War Baker for information and he and Mrs. Winn are waiting in indescribable anxiety for further news, holding earnestly to the hope that their boy is among the survivors.

It was definitely established in the latest dispatches from Washington that the unit of which Courtland is a member, company D, Sixth battalion, Twentieth engineers, a regiment especially organized for forestry service in France, was on the Tuscania.

Courtland has lived nearly all his life in Atlanta, where his family is one of the most prominent in the city. His father has been a prominent attorney here for years and several years ago served a term as mayor. He is also a nephew of Congressman Brand, of the Eighth district.

The hundreds of young Atlantans who

Popular Boy

Courtland was in the Boys' High school, class of 1912. He was one of the most thoroughly lovable boys in the class, noted for his modesty, his sunny temperament and a character that was unselfish to a remarkable degree. He was brilliant in his work, although his natural tendency was to keep out of the limelight.

Graduating from the Boys' High school, Courtland took the forestry course at the University of Georgia. He had a natural love for the work and on completing the course, stood a civil service examination for the government, in which, among thousands, his name was close to the top of the list.

He was at the Emory Law school when he received a letter from Washington, offering him the appointment of assistant forester at the Dakota National Forest in South Dakota, one of the largest reservations that the government owns. He accepted the appointment and left Atlanta last May to take up his duties.

His service for the government entitled Courtland to his deferred classification under the selective service law, but when his country went to war, he never thought of asking for it. Instead, early last fall, he wrote his father a letter in which he said that he felt it was the duty of every young man with no dependents to fight for his country in her time of peril. He had thought it over carefully, he wrote, and he had come to the conclusion that unless he volunteered, he would feel himself a "slacker." He asked the approval of his father and mother for the course he had decided upon, although in his heart, he declared, he knew he was right.

Enlisted in Montana

Mr. Winn immediately replied, telling Courtland that he was not surprised at his decision, that it did his heart good and that he was proud of his boy.

And so, on December 12 of last year, Courtland left his forestry reservation, rode forty miles on a motor truck with the thermometer 23 degrees below zero, and at Billings, Mont., the nearest recruiting station, enlisted as a private in the Twentieth Engineers, a special forestry regiment organized for service in France.

From Billings he was sent to Fort Wright, at Spokane, Wash., for preliminary training. Thence he went to Fort Myer, Va., and a short while later to Camp American University at Washington, D. C. On January 27 Mr. and Mrs. Winn received a telegram from him, stating that he was leaving almost immediately for France, but that if they came at once, they could see him before he left.

They took the midnight train for Washington and for two days were with Courtland. Previously his father had written Courtland suggesting that, with his acquaintance with prominent statesmen and others, it might be possible for him to get Courtland a commission, but Courtland had replied that he preferred to be a private. In these last hours before his departure, the father asked the son:

Had No Regret

"Courtland, are you satisfied? Don't you wish you had stayed in civil life?" And Courtland had answered that he had not a single regret. He had done his duty; if he had not, he would go to the nearest recruiting station then, he said, and enlist.

The next day Courtland left for an Atlantic port, for embarkation to France. The announcement Thursday that company D, Twentieth engineers, was a unit on board the Tuscania, was the first accurate knowledge Mr. Winn had had that his son was on board the ill-fated transport.

EIGHT GEORGIA MEN ON U. S. TRANSPORT DESTROYED BY SUB

Lieutenant James R. Bost
Sends Cable to His Relatives in Atlanta That He Escaped Injury.

NO WORD YET RECEIVED OF THE FATE OF WINN

Thomasville, Vienna, Valdosta, Winder and Other Sections of Georgia Represented in List.

Eight Georgians were on board the ill-fated United States transport Tuscania, which was sunk by a German submarine off the coast of Ireland, according to messages received from Washington last night.

The list as given out by the war department follows: First Lieutenant James R. Bost, Atlanta; Courtland S. Winn, Jr., of Atlanta; Corporal Charles H. Greer, Union Point; Charles D. Arendell, Jackson; Boyd E. Hancock, Thomasville; Robert Lee Malone, Valdosta; Allen W. Harris, Winder; Edward J. Peacock, Vienna.

No word has been received of the fate of these men with the exception of Lieutenant Bost, who sent a cable to his relatives in Atlanta Thursday that he had escaped uninjured.

Bost Well Known Here.

Lieutenant Bost, who was a member of the 158th Aero squadron, was practicing medicine in the west when the war broke out and at once volunteered for service.

He received his training in the first officers' training camp at Fort Oglethorpe and later was sent to Lake Charles, La., for further training.

In Atlanta he has a mother, Mrs. Martha Bost, who lives at 496 Piedmont avenue; a sister, Mrs. Ruth Lannier, and a brother, J. E. Bost, connected with the Rexall company, who lives at Georgia avenue and Capitol avenue.

Members of his family saw him last when he passed through Atlanta on a troop train one night during January. They went to the yards to see him and wish him good luck. The family had lived for years in Nashville and only recently moved to Atlanta.

No Word From Winn.

Courtland S. Winn, Jr., one of the most popular young men of Atlanta, son of former Mayor Courtland S. Winn, was one of the United States soldiers on board the ill-fated transport Tuscania. No word had reached Atlanta at a late hour last night as to whether he was included in the list of survivors or not.

It was definitely established in dispatches from Washington that Company D, Sixth battalion, Twentieth engineers, of which he is a member, was on board the vessel.

Courtland Winn, Jr., lived nearly all his life in Atlanta. He was a member of the graduating class of 1912 of Boys' High and followed this by taking the forestry course at the University of Georgia. He passed all his examinations with honors, and after completing the course stood a civil service examination for the government in which he ranked near the top in a class numbering thousands.

He later received the appointment as assistant forester at the Dakota national forest in South Dakota, where he was when war broke out. His government employment would have rendered him exempt from the draft, but he felt that this was no reason why he should not do his share of his country's fighting. He wired his father of his decision and Mr. Winn immediately wired his approval and consent. He then enlisted in the Twentieth engineers, where his forestry training stands him in good stead.

On January 27, Mr. and Mrs. Winn received word from their son that he would leave for France right away and they took the midnight train to Washington, D. C., where he was at Camp American University. They spent two days with him there.

Since Tuscania sailed 24 Jan 1918, it would have been impossible for his parents to visit with him in Washington DC on 27 Jan 1918 for 2 days - "Atlanta (GA) Constitution" Friday 8 Feb 1918 p 1

No further news of the fate of Courtland S. Winn, Jr., son of former Mayor Courtland S. Winn and graduate of the Boys' High school and the University of Georgia, had been received up to early Friday morning, nor is anything yet known of the fate of the other Georgians on the Tuscania.

SEVERAL GEORGIANS PROBABLY ARE LOST

Nothing Heard From Those Aboard the Torpedoed
Tuscania.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 9.—The announcement from Washington that the names of the Americans lost on the Tuscania cannot be announced until the names of the survivors have been cabled from England has made it impossible to learn anything more as yet regarding the fate of the Georgia boys on board the torpedoed transport.

At least eight Georgians are believed to have been on the Tuscania. Of these, only one, Lieut. James R. Bost, of Atlanta, has been heard from. He cabled relatives here he is safe. Seven other Georgia boys, including Courtland S. Winn, Jr., of Atlanta, the son of former Mayor Courtland S. Winn, are said to have been on the vessel.

W. G. Peebles, Atlanta manager of the Western Union Telegraph company, feared for a time that his son, W. G. Peebles, Jr., who is a corporal in the Twenty-fourth aero squadron, was on the Tuscania, but he had been informed by Congressman William Schley Howard that the war department states Corporal Peebles was not on the ship.

Lieut. Bost sent a telegram to his relatives in Atlanta stating that he was safe. His mother, Mrs. Martha Bost, lives at 496 Piedmont avenue. He has a sister, Mrs. Ruth Lanier, and a brother, J. E. Bost, connected with the Rexall company here.

No further news of the fate of Courtland S. Winn, Jr., son of former Mayor Courtland S. Winn and graduate of the Boys' High school and the University of Georgia, had been received up to early Friday morning, nor is anything yet known of the fate of the other Georgians on the Tuscania.

Mr. Malone, only 20 years of age and one of Valdosta's most popular young men, has a young wife, formerly Miss Lena Shell, living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. B. Shell, at 209 West Central avenue, Valdosta. Mr. Malone was formerly in the mechanical department of the Georgia Southern & Florida railroad. Two weeks ago Mrs. Malone had a letter from her husband stating that he was ordered "somewhere." She has not heard from him since.

Winn and Bost of Atlanta Are Rescued From Tuscania

TWO ATLANTA BOYS, who were on the Tuscania when the Hun torpedo sank her in the Irish sea, both of whom have been reported as saved. On the left is Courtland S. Winn, Jr., son of Former Mayor Courtland S. Winn. His parents received notification Saturday night that he was among the survivors. On the right is Lieutenant James R. Bost, son of Mrs. Martha Bost, 496 Piedmont avenue. He has wired his mother that he is safe and Adjutant General McCain has telegraphed that Lieutenant Bost's name is on the official list of survivors.

Arrendale and Ward Among the Survivors

All Georgians on the torpedoed transport Tuscania have been saved, according to reports from Washington. The latest cables brought the names of Charles R. Arrendale, Jacksonville, Ga., and Edward C. Ward, Newport, Ga., among the survivors. Eight other Georgians previously had been reported saved. They are: Courtland S. Winn, Jr., Atlanta; Lieutenant Joseph R. Best, Atlanta; Charles H. Greer, Union Point; Boyd E. Hancock, Thomasville; Hardy G. Robinson, Lawrenceville; Robert Lee Malone, Valdosta; Allen W. Harris, Winder; Edward J. Peacock, Vienna.

WAR BROUGHT HOME TO ATLANTA

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 11—Courtland S. Winn, Jr., son of former Mayor Courtland S. Winn of this city, was among the rescued from the transport Tuscania when the vessel was sunk by a German submarine off the north coast of Ireland. News of the young man's safe rescue was received yesterday by his father in a telegram from the War Department in Washington, and caused general rejoicing among his many friends in Atlanta. Young Mr. Winn was a member of a company of forestry engineers on board the Tuscania bound for France where they will be put to work on the devastated war areas. Lieutenant James R. Best, another Atlanta boy on board the Tuscania, was also saved.

The sinking of the Tuscania has brought the war directly home to Atlanta as no other incident on land or sea, possibly with the exception of the death of Kiffin Rockwell, the famous aviator of this city who was shot down in a fight with a German combat flyer. The war has been something vague and faraway. Now it is something real. Atlanta boys are in the fighting and on the transports, and with them are boys from every part of Georgia.

Courtland Winn, Jr., Cables His Parents Of Tuscania Escape

"Safe Tuscania. Winn."

These three words constituted all of the cablegram that Courtland S. Winn, of Atlanta, received Monday, but they were enough. They meant that his son, Courtland S. Winn, Jr., a private in a United States forestry regiment, was among those saved from the torpedoed transport Tuscania.

Mr. and Mrs. Winn already had received the official announcement from the war department that Courtland's name was not among the missing, but their relief and joy were great when they received the heartening message from Courtland himself.

Their feelings are shared by hundreds of other Atlantians who know and love Courtland and who feared for a time that he was lost on the torpedoed vessel.

Did Not Get Feet-Wet in Sinking of Tuscania

Atlanta, Ga., March 22.—Courtland S. Winn, Jr., survivor of the torpedoed transport Tuscania, son of one of Atlanta's former Mayors, writes that he did not even get his feet wet when the boat was sunk by a German submarine. Owing to censorship young Winn was not allowed to give any details of his experiences except to say that he landed at an Irish port and is now in England.

HEROES OF THE WORLD WAR TO GET CROSSES FROM U. D. C.

All Lineal Descendants of Confederate Veterans; Ex- ercises to Be Part of Ar- mistice Observance

Twenty veterans of the World war and 13 ex-service men, all of whom are lineal descendants of Confederate veterans, will be presented with the Cross of Service by the United Daughters of the Confederacy, at Armistice day exercises to be held in the legislative hall at the state capitol Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Cross of Service has been approved by the government as a military decoration, and is appropriately designed for this occasion. It is a double cross, the background being the Cross of Honor of the Confederate veteran, and the foreground a Crusader Cross in bold relief, bound to each other by the battle flag of the Confederacy. The crosses are linked by the entwined monogram UDC to a ribbon of Confederate colors, red, white and red, with center stripe of khaki. The motto is "Fortes, Creantur Fortibus" (The Brave Give Birth to the Brave) and a bronze dolphin attached to the ribbon signifies overseas service.

An appropriate program has been arranged for the occasion, with the main address being delivered by Judge W. F. Jenkins, presiding judge of the court of appeals, a widely known orator of recognized ability. Mrs. Oscar McKenzie, state president of the U. D. C., will pay a tribute to the Confederate veterans, and Brig. General Joseph Leitch, of Fort McPherson, will deliver a similar tribute to the World war veterans.

Presentation Speakers

Presentation of the crosses will be by Mrs. Forrest Kibler, custodian of crosses for the Atlanta chapter, and Dr. E. C. Davis will make the speech of acceptance. Dr. Davis served as Lieutenant Colonel in the World war, and received citation from General Pershing for meritorious and conspicuous service with the A. E. F. He was also decorated "Knight of the Order of Our Saviour" by the King of Greece. He was medical director of base hospital No. 43.

The men receiving the crosses have been asked to wear the uniforms used by them during the war, if possible.

The Old Guard will be present in a body, as will the Argonne post of the American Legion. The Overseas Girls club, War Mothers, Joseph Habersham chapter of the D. A. R., the Daughters of 1812, and all other patriotic organizations in Atlanta have been invited. The Georgia Tech band will furnish the music, and will play popular songs of the late war on the Washington street steps of the capitol from 2:45 to 3 o'clock.

Those who will receive crosses for overseas service are: E. C. Davis, Forrest M. Barfield, Courtland S. Winn, Jr., Marcus W. Beck, Jr. (deceased), Sterling A. Cox, Andrew O. Derrick, H. R. Donaldson, T. P. Goodwyn, Howard Harris, Conway W. Hunter, Samuel Y. Jameson, Cecil Kenneth Jones, Lucius McConnell, William Perrin Nicolson, Jr.,

Clark Howell, Jr., Henry Lyons, E. A. L. Phelps, W. A. Upchurch, Trammell Scott and J. L. R. Boyd.

Home Service Recipients

Those receiving crosses for at-home service are: Emory H. Calhoun (deceased), Henry Mash Cox, David Shelton Butler, Jr., W. F. Denman, Robert Eugene Kibler, Robert Lowry Nicolson, W. A. Parker, Jr., Aaron Webb Roberts, William Henry Smith, E. O. Swanson, James Reeve Walker and Stephen T. Brown.

Receiving the dolphin for overseas service are Dr. McIntosh Burns and Albert Irwin Almand.

The complete program follows:

Music—Military march.

Enter U. D. C. officers followed by World war veterans who are to receive Cross of Service accompanied by an escort of Confederate veterans and Boy Scouts.

Meeting called to order, president Atlanta chapter, Mrs. Stafford Seldell.

Music, southern airs, Georgia Tech band.

Introductory Remarks—Mrs. Stafford Seldell.

Address—Judge W. F. Jenkins.

Music Vocal Solo—Miss Frances Woodberry.

Tribute to Veterans 1861—Mrs. Oscar McKenzie.

Tribute to Boys of 1917—General Joseph Leitch.

Presentation and Roll Call—Mrs. Forrest Kibler.

Acceptance—Dr. E. C. Davis, Lieutenant Colonel.

Music, Dixie and Star Spangled Banner—Georgia Tech band.

Death of Cook recalled in letter to valley residents

By B. K. Monroe

Keepsake letters often provide links of historic interest to modern times.

Such a letter came to light in the George Durland home last week, still intact and easy to read, though the envelope with its two-cent stamp is in tattered condition.

The letter was addressed to Mr. F. L. Cook, Como, Montana, from Buna Vista, Va., on Aug. 25, 1919.

The writer's name was Courtland S. Winn., then in the Forest Service in Virginia.

Winn related that he had enlisted in the army at Billings in December of 1917 with the 20th Engineers and was shipped on the U.S.S. Tuscania for overseas duty, along with Marcus Cook, son of the Como man.

Telling a vivid story of the torpedoing of the Tuscania by the German submarine, Winn said in part:

"Marcus and I, on the morning of February 5, 1918, were on guard in a dangerous region between Scotland and Ireland; we two were on the topmost or "hurricane deck" seated in a lifeboat, looking out over the waters.

It began to grow dark and it came time to go down to supper; Marcus and I each insisted that the other go first and then come back to relieve the other.

"I finally went first and was in the hold washing up... when the torpedo struck. Lights went out and I ran back to my station on the hurricane deck where I and your son had been a few moments before.

"My duty was to help lower the tier of lifeboats on which we had been sitting while on submarine guard. The lifeboat on which we had been sitting was completely swung around and partly overturned by the explosion. The torpedo struck directly below the spot midships on the port side in the coal bunkers.

"It is my belief that Marcus was thrown out into the sea by the force of the explosion for I saw no trace of him in or near the lifeboat. Marcus and I were good friends."

The Como-born youth was a student at the University of Montana in Missoula and for years one of its units was called Marcus Cook Hall in his honor.

Elmer Cowan, member of a pioneer Victor family, was lost with Cook in the torpedoing of the Tuscania.

Their graves are side by side in Arlington National Cemetery and the Durlands have visited there.

Cook is buried in Arlington (section 18, grave 944) - Cowan's tombstone is in Victor MT

► "Four Families: Winn, Thomas, Ware, Garrett of the Southern United States from 1600s to 1993" was compiled by Frederick Ware Huff. The author has written a story about his family and intertwined their genealogy, thus creating an interesting approach to a dry subject.

The Winns include Atlanta Mayor Courtland S. Winn (1863-1940), and Gwinnett County's first settler, Elisha Winn (1777-1842) whose home is open to the public. The Thomases include descendants of Edward Lloyd Thomas, his son Lovick Pierce Thomas, and the Wailes Thomas line.

Included are diaries, family letters and wonderful photographs, including family homes. The book is arranged from the present to the past, an interesting approach. It is one of the few family histories the nonrelated might want to read, since it is a slice of Southern Americana that could suffice for your own family when no history exists. It is available for $35 postpaid from the author F.W. Huff, 659 Old Mountain Road, Kennesaw, Ga. 30144.

Bryan-Winn Wedding Solemnized At Beautiful Home Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Louise Bryan and Courtland S. Winn, Jr., was solemnized at 6 o'clock Thursday evening, May 17, at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Bryan, 110 Fifth street. The Rev. J. Sprole Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, performed the impressive ring ceremony in the presence of a representative gathering of relatives and friends.

The lovely bride, who entered with her father, J. H. Bryan, was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, J. R. Smith. Her natural beauty was enhanced by her lovely wedding dress of pale gray chiffon, fashioned with slightly bloused waist and graceful skirt of uneven hemline, which was artistically combined with touches of pale gray lace. The long sleeves and becoming V neck line were features of the lovely model. The whole was offset with a rhinestone ornament at the waist. A charming hat of delicate gray straw completed the lovely ensemble. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Bryan, mother of the bride, wore a model of cream-colored chiffon offset with a shoulder bouquet of pink rosebuds.

Mrs. Courtland S. Winn, mother of the groom, was lovely in an artistically draped model of delicate blue chiffon, artistically combined with touches of rose. She wore a shoulder bouquet of yellow rosebuds. Following the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home.

The young couple left afterward for a two weeks' trip to Asheville, N. C., after which they will make their home at 878 Rock Springs road, Morning-side.

Winn-Smith Marriage Solemnized at High Noon

A BEAUTIFUL church wedding was that of Miss Sarah Frances Winn and Mr. James Robert Smith, Jr., which was solemnized at high noon Wednesday at St. Mark's Methodist church. The impressive ceremony was performed by Dr. John R. Gunn, of Fort Wayne, Ind., uncle of the groom, who was assisted by Dr. Anthony, of St. Mark's.

Before the entrance of the bridal party several organ selections were rendered. The church was artistically decorated with palms and potted plants. The altar was banked with stately palms and tall white pedestal vases filled with white hydrangeas and Easter lilies. An aisle was formed of white satin ribbon.

Miss Alice Cain, the maid of honor, was gowned in ashes of roses silk net, fashioned over the same colored satin and trimmed with narrow gold ribbon. She wore a picture hat of black chiffon velvet and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and forget-me-nots.

The bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy McCullough, Miss Marion Smith, Miss Camille Work, Miss Hermione Walker, Miss Margaret Thomas, of Plainfield, N. J., and Miss Margaret White.

Miss McCullough and Miss Smith wore dainty frocks of king's blue silk net, made over a foundation of king's blue satin with trimmings of gold ribbon.

Miss Work and Miss Walker were gowned in brown lace, fashioned over brown satin and trimmed with gold lace.

Miss Thomas and Miss White wore becoming costumes of Oriental green silk net combined with gold lace, with an underdress of green satin.

Each bridesmaid wore a large picture hat of black chiffon and velvet and carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses, dahlias and asters.

Mr. Clarence Butt acted as best man. The groomsmen and ushers were, Mr. Sam Campbell, Mr. James Dunlap, Mr. John Robinson, Mr. William Estabrook, of Dayton, Ohio; Mr. George Flanders, of Swainsboro, Ga.; Mr. Julian Lifsey, Mr. B. H. Hubert, Mr. Earl Neal, Mr. James Harris and Mr. Charles Ewing.

Radiantly Lovely Bride

The bride entered the church with her father, Mr. Courtland S. Winn, who gave her in marriage. She was lovely in a smart fall model suit of dark blue peach bloom, embroidered in chenille in a rose design, and trimmed with Australian opossum fur. Her French blouse was of real lace, and she wore a hat of dark blue duvetyn draped with a lace veil. Her flowers was a shower bouquet of bride roses, orchids and swansonia.

Mrs. Winn, mother of the bride, wore brown charmeuse trimmed with real lace and a brown duvetyn hat trimmed with plumes. Her corsage was of pink roses.

Mrs. Winn, mother of the bride, wore brown charmeuse, trimmed with real lace and a brown duvetyn hat trimmed with plumes. Her corsage was of pink roses.

Mrs. Smith, the groom's mother, was handsomely gowned in dark blue charmeuse beaded, and a black velvet hat. Her corsage was of orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Clarence Winn Upchurch, sister of the bride, was becomingly gowned in black satin combined with sand-colored Georgette crepe. Her hat was of black velvet, and her flowers were a corsage of pink roses.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. Smith and his bride left for a wedding trip to Washington, New York and other points of interest in the east. After the middle of September they will be at home to their friends at the Ponclana apartments, on Ponce de Leon avenue.

Among the out-of-town guests present were: Dr. and Mrs. John R. Gunn and family, of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Mr. Courtland S. Winn, Jr., of New Orleans; Mr. and Mrs. James J. Winn and family, of New Orleans; Mr. George Flanders, of Swainsboro, Ga.; Miss Margaret Thomas, of Plainfield, N. J., and Mr. William H. Estabrook, of Dayton, Ohio.

Prominent Families

Mrs. Smith is the youngest daughter of Mr. Courtland S. Winn, of this city, her father being a member of the bar of Atlanta and former mayor of Atlanta. Her maternal grandfather was Colonel L. P. Thomas, of Atlanta, who held many positions of trust and honor in this city, and was a gallant Confederate soldier and colonel of the Forty-second Georgia infantry in the Confederate army. Her paternal grandfather was the late Judge Samuel J. Winn, of Lawrenceville, Ga., who was one of the leading lawyers of northeast Georgia and served with distinction in the Civil war, as colonel of the Thirteenth Georgia regiment of cavalry. She is a graduate of Washington Seminary, class of 1919. She was president of her class, a member of the X. K. Z. society and editor of the College Annual of her graduating year. She is a young woman who has greatly endeared herself to a large circle of friends by her gentle qualities and gracious manners.

Mr. Smith is the son of Mr. J. R. Smith, who has for a long while been actively identified as a leader in the social, business and political life of the state, and Mrs. Smith, Mr. Smith, Jr., attended the University of Georgia, was a member of the K. A. frat, and since finishing his college course has, by his industry and application, won an enviable position among the younger business men of Atlanta.

—Mrs. Courtland S. Winn, Jr., and Little son, Courtland Winn, III spent the week-end in the home of her uncle, Mr. Joe Brown, Seneca, South Carolina.

COURTLAND WINN, EX-MAYOR, DIES

Assistant City Attorney
Ill for Several Weeks;
Had Served on Council.

Courtland S. Winn, 77, former mayor of Atlanta who has held the position of assistant city attorney for many years, died last night at his home, 880 Rock Springs road, after an illness of several weeks.

Long a leading member of the legal profession here, he had been a resident of the city for more than half a century. His health began to fail a few weeks ago and his death was said to have been caused by heart trouble.

"Mr. Winn's death came as a great shock to me," Mayor Hartsfield said last night. "The city has sustained a great loss.

"Mr. Winn served with distinction both as a former mayor and as assistant city attorney."

caused by heart trouble.

"Mr. Winn's death came as a great shock to me," Mayor Hartsfield said last night. "The city has sustained a great loss.

"Mr. Winn served with distinction both as a former mayor and as assistant city attorney."

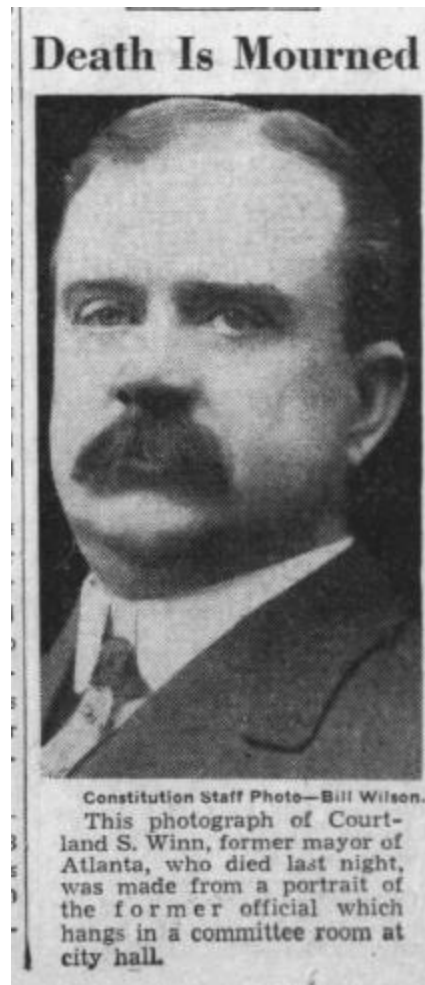

Mr. Winn served as mayor from 1911 to 1913 after defeating former Mayor James J. Woodward. He previously had served as a member of city council for several terms and was regarded as one of the most popular figures in the city's legal and political circles.

A native of Lawrenceville, he was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sam J. Winn. Graduating from old Emory College, where he was a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, he taught school for a time in Gwinnett county.

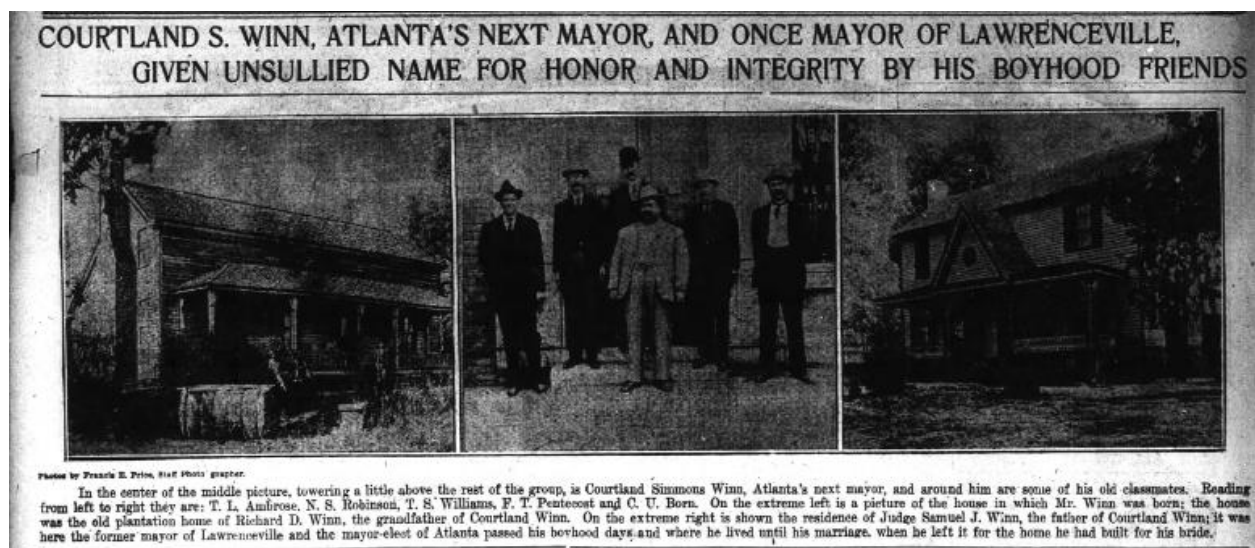

Later taking up the practice of law, he lived in Lawrenceville again for a brief period and then moved to Atlanta, where he soon became known as one of the outstanding young attorneys in the city.

Surviving are his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Clara Winn Upchurch, of New York, and Mrs. J. R. Smith, of Rome, Ga.; two sons, Samuel J. Winn, of Savannah, and Courtland S. Winn Jr., of Atlanta, and several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

MAYOR-ELECT TO TAKE OATH ON PRIZED BIBLE

Family Friend Will Administer
Obligation and Mr. Winn's
Pastor Will Offer Prayer

When Mayor-elect Courtland S. Winn takes the oath of office on next Monday evening he will use the same Bible presented to him by his father, Judge Samuel J. Winn, 30 years ago, when he was leaving his home in Lawrenceville to enter Emory college. The inscription written by the father in the son's Bible follows:

“To Courtland S. Winn, from his father, with the injunction that he make this book the man of his counsel.” This was in September, 1880. Mr. Winn obeyed the injunction throughout his college career and has continued to obey it since his graduation.

The oath will be administered to the new mayor by Judge George Bell, of the Fulton superior court, a lifelong friend of both Mr. Winn and his father.

Dr. J. B. Robbins, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, of which Mr. Winn is a member, will open the 1911 council with prayer. It was at the request of the mayor-elect that City Clerk-elect Walter Taylor invited Judge Bell and Dr. Robbins to participate in the exercises incident to Mr. Winn's inauguration.

Atlanta's Mayoralty Contest.

Atlanta, Ga., Thursday, 20.—One of the most exciting municipal campaigns Atlanta has experienced in some years came to a whirlwind finish today, preliminary to the primary election tomorrow for the choice of mayor. James G. Woodward, whose escapades while serving as mayor some years ago attracted wide attention, is again a candidate for the office of executive of the city. During his previous tenure of the office Mr. Woodward in order to save himself from impeachment, took the pledge and promised to refrain from night visits to the "red light" district. His opponent in the present contest for the mayoralty is Courtland S. Winn, who has the support of the business element.

Engagement of sister Clara Mae Winn (1886-1986) to Clevia Wilson Upchurch –
 “Montgomery (AL) Advertiser” Sunday 18 Aug 1907 p 9

Wednesday morning at Trinity Methodist church, Atlanta, the marriage of Miss Clara May Winn and Mr. Cleve Upchurch was solemnized in the presence of a large assembly of friends. The occasion was one of beauty and elegance.

To the strains of Lohengrin, the bride entered the church with her father, Col. Courtland S. Winn, and was followed by her maid of honor, Miss Ina Thomas, of Little Rock. The party was met at the altar by the groom and his best man and the ceremony was performed by Dr. J. W. Lee, who also officiated when the bride's parents were married at Trinity.

The church was decorated with palms and ferns, and an altar decoration of these plants, used effectively with bride roses, formed a beautiful background for the bridal party. The bride was charming in a suit of blue chiffon broadcloth. The long coat, trimmed with bands of velvet, opened over a smart blouse of mull and lace, and the full platted skirt, on which velvet bands were stitched above the hem, fell in graceful lines. With this was worn a hat of blue satin, trimmed with Mirabeau feathers and a touch of green velvet. A shower bouquet of bride roses was carried.

The bride as Miss Clara May Winn has been since her debut one of the most popular young women in Atlanta. She possesses unusual beauty, and is everywhere loved for her womanly qualities of heart and mind. Mr. Upchurch holds an important position with the Atlanta Georgian.

Ware-Winn

The wedding of Miss Helen Frances Ware and Mr. Samuel James Winn, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Courtland S. Winn, took place quietly last evening at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. William Reid Ware, on Washington street, Rev. Howard Crumley officiating.

On account of the illness of the bride's sister, Miss Marjorie Ware, the ceremony was witnessed by the members of the two families only.

The bride, who is a lovely young woman, and a graduate last June of Vassar, wore a pretty traveling suit of sapphire blue cloth with a black velvet turban, trimmed with sapphire blue satin ribbon and wings.

Mr. Winn and his bride left immediately after the ceremony to spend a week in Asheville, N. C., and on their return will go to housekeeping in an apartment.

Marriage of Samuel James Winn & Helen Frances Ware – “Atlanta (GA) Journal” Friday 14 Oct 1910 p 10

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Winn of Atlanta are spending their honeymoon in Asheville and other mountain resorts of North Carolina. Mrs. Winn was Miss Helen Frances Ware, the daughter of Mrs. William Reid Ware, a June graduate of Vassar college and one of Atlanta's most charming debutantes. Mr. Winn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Courtland S. Winn; Mr. Courtland Winn is candidate for mayor of Atlanta. The wedding occurred at the bride's home Thursday evening, October 15. The young people will reside in Atlanta, making their home with Mr. and Mrs. Courtland Winn.

JURISPRUDENCE TRIUMPHS AT LONG LAST OVER STORK

Atlanta, Aug. 4.—(P)—Jurisprudence triumphed at long last over the stork today when Mrs. Helen Winn Huff, daughter of Former Mayor Courtland S. Winn, was admitted to the bar.

Mrs. Huff enrolled in a law school in 1932, but soon was forced to postpone her studies when the stork came calling. Twice again she enrolled, and twice again the stork interrupted.

Finally, last May, she received her degree. Today she was admitted to the bar. With Mrs. Huff at the ceremony were her three children—including eight-weeks-old Sanford, who slept in his mother's arms while the oath was administered.

This story has inaccuracies- Helen Winn was the daughter of Samuel James Winn & Helen Frances Ware, and therefore the granddaughter of ex-Atlanta mayor Courtland Simmons Winn Sr. - "Durham (NC) Herald-Sun" Saturday 5 Aug 1939 p 9
