D. C. MAN'S NAME IN LATE TUSCANIA SURVIVOR LIST

Jacob Zalkind, Washington boy whose friends had given him up as a victim of the Tuscania disaster, was today numbered among the survivors in a list of seven additional names made public by the War Department.

Zalkind was a private in the 158th aero squadron and scores of friends had been studying the lists of names at the Committee of Public Information and the War Department for several days in the hope that his name would be found. When his name was not received with the last big batch they abandoned hope for him.

While young Zalkind's home was in Fore River, Mass., he was probably better known in Washington. He came here several years ago to accept a position with the Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Animal Industry, and was taking a night course in law at Georgetown University. When the United States decided to enlarge its air activities he sought service as an enlisted man. He was sent from Washington to Dayton, Ohio, and from there to the border for a finishing course.

He went direct from the border to the port of embarkation.

TWO FALL RIVER MEN ON TORPEDOED LINER

Nothing Yet Known Definitely of the Fate of John Hendrick and Jacob Zalkind, Both Members of the 158th Aero Squadron.

Two Fall River men—John Hendrick and Jacob Zalkind—were aboard the Cunard liner Tuscania when the big steamship was torpedoed by a German submarine off the north coast of Ireland Tuesday afternoon. Neither the War department nor the Navy department has yet received reports to indicate definitely what the fate of the men may be. It may be several days, Washington dispatches indicate, before the full list of survivors and lost will be available.

John Hendrick's home is at 1253 South Main street. He was a member of the 213th Aero squadron but on Jan. 8 he received a furlough and had just reached home when he received a telegram to report back. He went to Providence, where he met Sergt. Henry of his company and was transferred to the 158th Aero squadron.

Hendrick enlisted in the Aviation corps on Sept. 22 through the recruiting office at Providence and was sent to Fort Slocum, going from there to a camp in Texas. After his training had been completed, his company was brought up to Long Island City, preparatory to going across. The men in the company were granted a week's furlough so that they could come home. He had just reached home when the telegram arrived calling him back to his company. He left the city on Jan. 13 and has not been seen by his relatives since that time.

Had he left with his former company, he would have sailed for France about Jan. 10 and so avoided the accident.

He is 20 years of age and worked in the King Philip mill in the South End. About three years ago he enlisted in the British army and was sent to the Dardanelles. After the failure of the campaign there he was brought back to France, where he served in the trenches for about seven months. During the time he was in service he was wounded four or five times, the last time going into the hospital. It was during the time in the hospital that he, with four Boston boys, decided that they had enough of army life, so they left and in due time reached the United States, landing in March. He remained at home until last September, when he decided again to go into service, this time with the United States.

He is the son of Mrs. Nora Pelton and his stepfather, William Pelton, is a fireman attached to Hose 8.

Jacob Zalkind, the other local young man aboard the Tuscania, is a son of Mrs. Bessie Zalkind, 62 Covet street and the late Charles Zalkind. He was born in Russia, 24 years ago, and with his parents came to this country, settling in Fall River when three years old. He graduated from the Davis school and attended Durfee High school for two years, afterward graduating as a stenographer from Thibodeau's business college. Prior to his enlistment in Washington in November, in the 158th Aero squadron he was employed as a stenographer in the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

There are five brothers residing in this city and one married sister residing in Providence.

Members of the family sent a telegram of inquiry to the War department yesterday, through Congressman Greene, seeking definite information regarding their brother, but up to noon today no reply had been received.

LOCAL BOYS ON TUSCANIA

Privates Jacob Zalkind and John Hendrick Believed Aboard.

Both Were Members of the 158th Aero Squadron—Last Heard From at Garden City, Long Island, Two Weeks Ago.

Two local boys are believed to have been on the ill-fated steamer Tuscania, when she went to the bottom off the north coast of Ireland, Tuesday night. Private Jacob Zalkind of 62 Coval street, and Private John P. J. Hendrick of 1253 South Main street, both members of the 158th Aero Squadron, were last heard from at Garden City, L. I., and as the 158th Squadron is listed among those organizations which had been shipped on the Tuscania, it is thought that the boys sailed with it two weeks ago.

John P. J. Hendrick is the son of Mrs. William Pelton of 1253 South Main street, and Jacob Zalkind is the son of Mrs. Besale Zalkind of 62 Coval street. Mr. Zalkind, who is 34 years old, attended B. M. C. Durfee High school for two years, after that going to a commercial school, then taking a civil service examination and securing an appointment as stenographer in the navy yard at Portsmouth, N. H. From there he was promoted to the government service in Washington, about two years ago, and remained there until a few months ago, when he enlisted as a clerk in the aviation service of the army.

Zalkind was at first sent to Louisiana, from there to Texas, and finally came north to Garden City, a camp just outside of Long Island City, New York. Knowing that he was soon to cross to France, the Zalkind family went on to Garden City to say good-bye, and two weeks ago came his last letter, saying that the time of departure was near. Since then, he has not been heard from.

Beside his mother, Zalkind has three brothers in this city, David, Harry and Samuel. The family sent a wire to Washington, Thursday, asking for information, but has not yet had a reply.

John P. J. Hendrick, although only 20 years of age has had an adventurous career. About three years ago he went over to England in a cattle boat and upon reaching the other side enlisted in the British army, serving with the Eighth King's Irish Liverpool Regiment seven months in the trenches. While doing guard duty one night, he was wounded a couple of times, and was sent to a base hospital in England. After staying at the hospital for two weeks, Hendrick, together with two Boston boys, escaped and made his way to a boat leaving for this side, preferring to fight under the American flag after his country had entered the war. He arrived the latter part of March last year, and after gaining sufficient strength, enlisted in the aero division of the United States army, last September.

He remained at Fort Slocum for about a week, and was then sent to a camp down in Texas, where he remained for about three months, when he was transferred to Long Island

City, New York. Previous to his reporting at Long Island City, Hendrick received a week's furlough, but had been at his home on South Main street only one day when he received a telegram to report at New York on the following day.

Instead of reporting, Hendrick went up to Providence to see Sergeant Henry of his company, who was also on furlough, and requested the sergeant to have him transferred from the 49th to the 158th Squadron. This was done in order to allow Hendrick to remain on furlough. He reported to his new commander on Jan. 14th, his mother receiving a postal on that day stating that he felt a little sick. That was the last heard of him by any of his relatives.

Everyone who knows Hendrick is of the opinion that he will turn up safe and sound, as in all his adventures he has seemed to bear a charmed life.

Hendrick has a mother living and also a stepfather, William Pelton, a member of Hose 8, beside three brothers and one sister.

In giving a reason for the escape of her son with the Boston boys, Mrs. Pelton stated that her son, upon arriving in England from the cattle boat, was told that he would not be allowed to come back to this country until the war was over, and was forced to enlist rather than starve.

FATE OF FALL RIVER LADS ON TORPEDOED TUSCANIA UNKNOWN

John P. Hendrick, aged 18 years, of 1253 South Main street, this city was one of the two Fall River youths who were on the Tuscania which was lost off the Irish coast on Tuesday night as the result of being torpedoed by a German submarine. No definite information has been received whether he has been saved or not. The same is true of Private Jacob Zalkind of 62 Covell street. Both young men were members of the 213th Aero Squadron.

Private Hendrick, when at the age of 16 years was in France. He went over from this country on a cattle boat and after spending over a year there returned to this country when the United States entered the war and enlisted in the aviation corps. Young Hendrick has been brought up since a baby by William E. and Nora Pelton of South Main street and about three weeks ago paid them a short visit, returning to Mineola, Long Island. Nothing has been heard of him until this morning when his name appeared in the list of Bay State boys who were aboard the ill-fated ship. Fears for his safety are entertained. It is possible however that he was among those saved.

Private Jacob Zalkind is the son of Mrs. Bessie Zalkind of 62 Covell street. He was also attached to the 213th Aero Squadron and a short time ago visited his parents here before returning to the aviation field at Mineola, preparatory to leaving for the front. He is well known in the Eastern section of the city and it is earnestly hoped that he was among those saved.

FINE DISCIPLINE ON THE TUSCANIA

SERGT.-MAJOR JACOB ZALKIND TELLS OF EXPERIENCES ON TORPEDOED SHIP.

Was About To Jump Overboard, but Slid Down Rope To Torpedo Boat—Landed in Irish Port—Has Since Received Promotion.

Sergeant-Major Jacob Zalkind of this city was one of the last to leave the transport Tuscania, as it was settling into its ocean grave, torpedoed by a German submarine, more than a month ago. In a letter dated Feb. 11, received today by his brother, Samuel Zalkind, of 1650 North Main street, he relates his thrilling rescue from Davy Jones' locker in a matter-of-fact way.

In another letter to his mother, Mrs. Bessie Zalkind, he tells of his work in Ireland and England, and of his promotion to corporal and then to sergeant-major in the 158th Aero Service Squadron.

The discipline of the men aboard was wondrous. With the German submarine still lurking about, with the lurching and sinking ship in darkness, and with seeming confusion everywhere, order still predominated, and many smoked cigarettes. Although the boat assigned to Sergt. Zalkind and 60 others had been smashed by the torpedo, no attempt was made to enter another life boat. The cool-headedness of the men saved the situation from becoming a rout and a complete catastrophe.

The sergeant says he had a fairly good trip and quarters until the 13th day on sea. Boat drills were held each day. After the 10th day on board, the submarine danger was guarded against.

"After the tenth day," he writes, "we were met by a fleet of torpedo boat destroyers, which acted as convoy, in addition to what we had before. We were awakened every morning before dawn and kept on deck until dusk, with orders not to go anywhere without life preservers.

We have seen no submarines, and all those precautions sometimes amuse me. Well, about the 13th night at 6, was in the bowels of the ship, waiting for grub, when—boom! And out went all the lights. It was not necessary for any of us to be told what happened.

We just hiked for the stairs, but here is where cool-headedness came, and though there was some crowding, there was no jam. The fellows who had flashlights and matches, lit them so that the crowd could see the stairs. This eased things up a great deal and everyone got to the boat places in fine order and took their regular drill places.

"When I reached my place I found that the torpedo had blown my lifeboat to shreds. There were 60 of us assigned to the boat. We stood around for awhile and lit cigarettes and talked the situation over. None of us that I could see tried to enter another crowd's boat. At this time the ship was going down, taking a big list to the starboard. I saw one boat lowered half way, containing a load of men. The ropes broke and they rolled back into the sea. We managed to haul some who were hanging to ropes back again.

Our crowd stuck together in the meantime, and the lieutenant in command of our boat with some of us went up on boat-deck to push a boat over that was not in use. Most of the davits were out of order by this time, and we had to push the boat over the side. We shoved one over, and it drifted away before anything could be done. We pushed another over, but that went upside down. So I went back to the lower deck, where I found about one-half of our crowd left.

The others managed to get off. I saw, however, several accidents while the life boats were going over, so with some of the others we started to stick to the ship. Just before she took her plunge we were going to jump overboard, with the chance of swimming out of the suction, as she went down, for he had life-preservers, anyway that seemed our only chance because no small boats were left. While I was on the port side a torpedo boat destroyer came along the starboard and was taking men off. I happened to stroll around, and believe me, was surprised, for the torpedo boat destroyer was diving as the tin fish (the submarine) had sent two torpedoes at our ship and was still loose.

By this time the deck was almost cleared and I had no difficulty in finding an empty rope, from which I slid onto the deck of the torpedo boat. The seamen on the boat (names censored) and English vessel did wonderful work, and it was due to the way they laid their ships along side and their Trojan-like efforts that we managed to get off. I only left when practically all the men got off. It was when I had to leave pretty hurriedly that another torpedo grazed the destroyer's keel. After three hours steaming we landed safely in an Irish port, and put up in a barracks, where we remained four days. We were given wonderful treatment by the English, Scotch and Irish troops quartered there."

Sergeant Zalkind is at present in an English rest camp. He says his men are a motley-looking bunch, as they received nondescript pieces of clothing from the various places visited since landing. All the survivors are in excellent shape, and eager to get over there to do their bit against the Huns, who sent their comrades to an ocean grave.

The Daughters of Zion held their annual lawn party, Sunday afternoon, at the residence of Charles Zalkind, at 216 Haffard street. The grounds were elaborately decorated, and in the evening an illumination of Japanese lanterns added to the beauty of the decorations. Refreshments were served at 6, and from 8 to 9 an excellent concert was given by the members, assisted by Brown's Orchestra, who were present both afternoon and evening. The affair was a pronounced success and reflected great credit on the committee of arrangements, the Misses Zalkind, Leschiner and Lachinsky. The officers of the organization are as follows: Miss Sinkoff, president; Miss Velodsky, vice president; Miss Cohen, secretary, and Miss Wilson, treasurer.

HORSE BURNED TO DEATH.

Fire Destroyed Small Barn on Haffards Street at 11 Last Night.

A fire which broke out shortly after 11 last night in the barn of Charles Zalkind at the rear of 216 Haffards street, not only destroyed the barn, but burned a work horse to death. The barn was a small structure, being practically doomed to destruction when the department arrived on the scene. Close attention was paid a feather factory nearby, and the flames were allowed to communicate in no way with this structure. About 11:20 Officer Roux was passing in the vicinity of the barn when he saw flames burst forth from the interior of the barn. The officer pulled in the alarm from box 86 at the corner of Haffards and County streets. The horse in the barn was hauled nearly to safety when it turned and ran back into the stall. After much effort it was finally hauled out into the yard, but it was so badly burned that Officer Raymond Léary ended its misery with a bullet. The total loss will probably reach in the neighborhood of $80, there being no insurance.

OLD BOTTLES CAUSE OF SUIT.

Some weeks ago judgment was found for Rakhlun & Sons, when sued in the District court by Charles Zal-kind and another, who appealed to the law to recover for bottles sold to the defendants. Now the Rakhlans make use of the same medium, with the assistance of D. R. Radovsky to be paid for the storage and cartage of the bottles in question.

Their defence in the first instance was that many of the bottles reached their warehouse broken, and that others were equally unsaleable owing to their dirty condition. Mr. Zalkind refused to remove them or to honor a bill for storing them.

Facts and Incidents as Reported and Rumored in Flint Village.

Charles Zalkind died suddenly of heart failure at 5:30 this morning in his yard at 216 Haffard street. Deceased was engaged in the feather business and has not been well for the past three years. His condition was such last night that his wife wished to call a physician but he would not have one. This morning he arose at 5 o'clock and went out to harness his horse. To make more room for the operation he tried to push the wagon away and exerted himself too much, dropping to the ground. Dr. Packer was called but the man succumbed before his arrival. Medical Examiner Gunning stated that death was due to heart failure and the remains were turned over to Undertaker Ashton for burial.

Referee Sherman Hears More of Dondis Case, in Which Attorney Radovsky and Others Are Concerned.

Contempt proceedings against Attorney David R. Radovsky, Samuel Dondis, David Biltsky and Samuel Zalkind, in connection with the bankruptcy of Fannie Dondis, were further heard and completed before Referee Clifford P. Sherman in bankruptcy court today. The referee reserved his decision and ordered the hearing into the estate of the bankrupt continued until Oct. 14.

Referee Sherman read an amendment to the contempt petition filed by Nathan Yamins, receiver in the case, and who filed the original petition, in which the receiver requested that the name of David R. Radovsky be withdrawn from the petition. The referee was about to grant the request, when Attorney A. S. Phillips interposed an objection. Mr. Phillips stated that he joined in the original petition, as counsel for the receiver, and also as counsel for creditors and that so far as he was concerned Mr. Radovsky was still a party to the contempt proceedings. The amendment to the petition was allowed as to Mr. Yamins, but not as to Mr. Phillips.

F. A. Pease, who appeared as counsel for the respondents, did not take advantage of the opportunity offered for argument, but Mr. Phillips argued for a time. He asserted that the court had been "outraged" in the Dondis case and that an attempt had been made, through mortgages, to prevent the bankruptcy court from taking charge of the estate of the bankrupt.

Attorney Radovsky, Deputy Sheriff Hugh T. McNeill, who served the papers in the case, Samuel Dondis, husband of the bankrupt, David Biltsky and Samuel Zalkind, the other respondents in the contempt petition, were examined at today's session, more or less feeling being displayed during the hearing, particularly on the part of counsel.

Mr. Radovsky went through the entire proceedings from the time of the placing of the first attachment on Dondis' stores down through the bankruptcy matter. He had a number of talks with Nathan Yamins, the receiver, and they agreed, he said, that the best way to do in the matter would be to keep the stores open and then dispose of them as quickly as possible. Then Mr. Phillips entered into the case and announced that he would close the stores, one on Mulberry, the other on East Main street. This and other matters in relation to the bankruptcy petition stirred up a lot of trouble and the parties at interest have since been more or less at loggerheads. When he heard of the contempt petition he called the referee by telephone and told him he considered such action nothing but bulldozing and intimidation.

Yamins, witness testified, told him after the petition was filed that he did not know Radovsky's name was on it, that it was put on Mr. Phillips, although he would not say that the latter was trying to "put one over" on him. Witness defended his action in advising Zalkind to break open the Mulberry street store after Deputy Sheriff McNeill and the receiver had posted a notice and locked the place, asserting that he considered the respondent had a perfect right in the store. He believed his advice strictly in accordance with the law at the time he gave it and that he is of the same opinion today. Mr. Radovsky was questioned by Mr. Phillips relative to the leases and mortgages that have entered into the case and insisted that in his opinion everything done by his former clients was perfectly legal, as he interpreted the law.

The first witness was Deputy Sheriff McNeill. He told of putting an attachment on the Mulberry street store and also on the East Main street shop. Before the attachments were dissolved by the giving of a bond by David Biltsky he received $63.04, as receipts, and turned over $61 to Mr. Radovsky and the remainder to the receiver. He testified to the locking of the Mulberry street store and said that later Mr. Radovsky said he had advised Samuel Zalkind, who was the manager of the store, that he had a right to break into it.

David Biltsky told of going surety on a bond to dissolve the attachments on Fannie Dondis' store, he being secured by a mortgage. He simply went surety as a personal favor to Samuel and Fannie Dondis in return for favors they have done him. Samuel Zalkind, former manager of the Mulberry street store, admitted breaking into the store after the receiver had posted a notice and locked the place up, but that he thought he was doing all right. He was advised as to his rights by Mr. Radovsky. The latter did not tell him in so many words to break into the store, but said he had a right in there if he wished to go in. He, as well as David Biltsky, had Mr. Radovsky as counsel at the time of the bankruptcy proceedings, but have changed attorneys now.

Mr. Radovsky was the last witness called and was on the stand for some time, going over the matter quite thoroughly.

Samuel M. Zalkind, 67 Wilbur street, who was discharged a few days ago, because of a technicality in the complaint, was rearraigned before Judge Cook in Second District court today on a charge of permitting his number plates to be used on an unregistered machine owned by Antonio Gonsalves. He was adjudged guilty and fined $25, from which he appealed. Surety in $100 was furnished.

According to the police, Zalkind loaned the plates to Gonsalves to allow him to try out a machine which had just come from a repair shop. An hour elapsed and Zalkind tried to locate Gonsalves, and was informed that the car had been in an accident. He said that his plates had been stolen but later said he had loaned them.

Suit of Bessie Dondis Zalkind vs. Bay State Street Railway Co. Given to the Jury.

The $5000 suit of Bessie Dondis Zalkind vs. Bay State Street Railway Co., wherein the plaintiff seeks to recover for injuries claimed to have been sustained in October, 1919, when she jumped from a Globe Village car following the issuing of flames and smoke from the controller box, went to the jury at the resumption of court after the noon recess to-day. The case has been on trial for several days and testimony for the defense was concluded Tuesday afternoon.

Arguments were made this forenoon by Attorney John T. Swift, representing the defendant, and Attorney D. R. Radovsky, appearing for the plaintiff. Judge O'Connell completed his charge to the jury at 1 o'clock. After advising the jurors not to discuss the case among themselves or allow anybody to discuss it with them the court excused the jurors until 2:15 o'clock when they retired to the jury room.

Opportunity!

The dollar continued its travel uptown, going from an employee of the Gwinner-Mercere concern—via the payroll envelope route—to the Memphis Fur Shop in the Hotel Peabody. This company was formed here six years ago and has grown constantly. It is incorporated for $50,000 and in addition to a complete factory maintains a cold storage plant in the basement of the Hotel Peabody Building. It draws upon all the fur centers of the old and new world for its raw materials, fashion them into coats, jackets and neckpieces in its plant here. Joe Baer is president, Sidney Baer, treasurer and Harry Zalkind, secretary of the company.
