COOPER COUNTY JUSTICE.

How it is Meted to the People at Clifton in a Disturbance and in a Dog Case.

An Irish Broil, and How John Ogle was Accused of Stealing a $29 Dog.

Thursday was a field day at Clifton, a small town in Cooper county, about twenty-miles north of this city.

Justice N. P. Hedges held his court.

It was 10:30 yesterday morning when the justice walked into the room used for holding court, comfortably filled with men and boys huddled around a red-hot coal stove. The justice took a turn around the room a couple times and put two egg cases on top of each other in one corner, and bringing down his fist, said :

"ORDER IN COURT"

Everybody took off their hats and the sound of voices was hushed.

"All you who can't get seats must stand on your two legs and make as little noise as possible, and if you don't behave the wrath of the law will be visited upon your devoted heads," continued the Court frowning fiercely.

The room was still as death and the little boys only breathed when they thought the judge was not looking at them.

"Mr. Constable run the dogs out and provided spittoons for this army of tobacco chawers who are defiling their mouths with the vile weed," said the judge.

The constable hustled around and soon had a lot of cigar boxes filled with earth in different parts of the room for the use of the "chawers."

And then they "chawed" these "chawers" did,
With jaws that never rested,
And careful aimed tobacco juice
Each box of earth invested.

THEIR NAMES WERE DENNIS.

"Mr. Constable call the parties to this 'ere case of state of Missouri vs. Dennis Sweeney and Robert Burke."

The case was called and the form of swearing the jury gone through with. The witnesses elevated their right hands toward heaven and agreed to tell the truth in fear of the wrath to come.

The attorneys, Ed. Shackleford representing the prosecuting attorney of Cooper county and W. A. Fast, of Sedalia, stood for the defendants and business commenced:

With legal forms and legal lore
The case was called in court,
And men and boys all crowded 'round
To listen to the sport

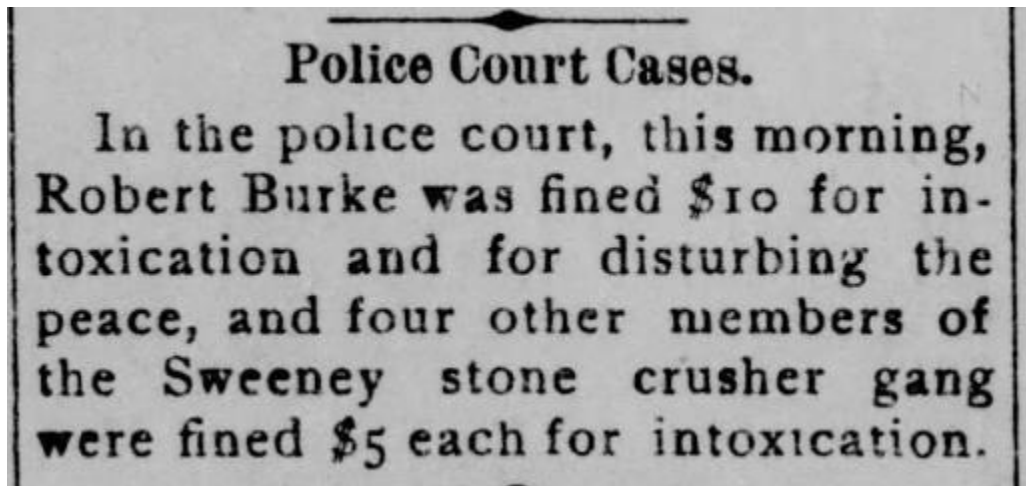

From the evidence it seems that on the 29th day of November early in the night the defendants Sweeney and Burke rode up to the house of Dennis Long and called him out and Sweeney commenced to abuse him and pulled a revolver and threatened to have him don angel plumage all because Long's cattle were in a field belonging to C. B. Neal, who Burke and Sweeney claimed they had in possession, and their stock was there. Long testified that Sweeney called him some very bad names and pulled the pistol, after which they rode into the field and drove Long's cattle out. The wife and mother of Dennis Long testified, which was substantially the same as that of Mr. Long. Robert Burke, Wm. Hazelton and Dennis Sweeney testified. Mr. Sweeney testified that he had no pistol, and did not have any weapon, or did he attempt to draw one.

THE VERDICT.

The attorneys made able addresses to the jury, after which they retired and found a verdict acquitting both Sweeney and Burke.

Then Burke and Sweeney swore an oath,
Since law had broke the bubble
They never, never, while they lived
Would have another trouble.

16 days after his marriage to Nellie Sweeney, in which her brother Dave Sweeney was his best man, Robert Burk & Dennis Sweeney are in court -

Mother:

BURKE-SWEENEY.

The Marriage of Mr. Robert Burke, of Wildflower, California, to Miss Nellie Sweeney, a handsome young lady of Clifton, took place at the Catholic church, in this city, last Thursday morning.

The young lady is well known and liked by a number of friends here. She wore as a wedding costume a dress of royal purple satin trimmed richly with plush, with bonnet and gloves to match. The attendants were Mr. Dave Sweeney, brother of the bride, and Miss Nellie Quirk, of this city.

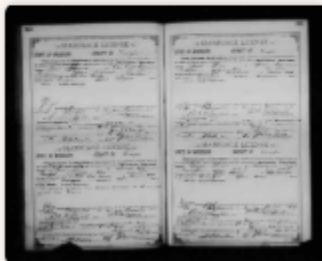

After the ceremony they went by train to Clifton where an elegant dinner had been prepared for them and at which one hundred and twenty-five guests were present. In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Burke were driven to the groom's home where a fine supper was served to over one hundred guests. The presents were both numerous and appropriate and their many friends wish them peace and prosperity.
