LOOKOUTS. On 24-hour duty atop the new County Courthouse in Mineola, these air raid spotters pierce the dark skies ever watchful for the possibility of attacking bombers. With binoculars is Leo V. Michels, Mineola Legion Post. Helping him keep watch are Dan Duggan and George Lindsay, Sea Scout Ship 17, Mineola. All over the county volunteer wardens are keeping vigil.

Son:

Home From Asiatic Fighting Front

Mineola—Home from a secret military mission in New Guinea, Pfc. Arthur T. Michels, 23, of 138 Jerome Ave., here, has lots of exciting tales to tell his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Michels.

Young Michels went to New Guinea as an aide to a superior officer and his reminiscences abound with tales of Jap snipers being shot from trees.

A former Grumman employe, he says that upon one occasion the bomber in which he was flown overseas was attacked by a swarm of Japanese Zeros. When a flight of Grumman Wildcats came in view the Zeros flew away without firing a shot, he says.

He set out for New Guinea on Feb. 5 of this year, exactly 25 years before his father had been torpedoed aboard the ship "Tuscania" while serving in World War I.

Michels is now stationed at Camp Anza, Cal., though he will remain home on furlough until Sunday. He was graduated from Mineola High School.

Matter of Newell

Case Details

Full title: In the Matter of JAMES E. NEWELL, an Attorney, Respondent

Court: Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of New York, Fourth Department

Date published: Jul 5, 1916

Summary

In Matter of Newell (174 App. Div. 94) the court said: "Unless the members of our profession are prepared to abandon the traditions which have entitled it to be regarded as an honorable calling, unless we are prepared to yield to the notion that the members of our profession have our sanction to prey upon society, we should not hesitate to condemn the practices proven against the respondent in this case."

PER CURIAM:

The petition herein, verified February 24, 1915, was filed March 17, 1915, and the answer thereto was filed on the same day. The matter was referred to the Honorable Charles A. Hawley, a counselor of this court, to take the proofs and return the same to this court together with his opinion thereon, by an order entered March 17, 1915. In this order Albert H. Clark, the district attorney of Cayuga county, was designated to prosecute the charges against the respondent. The referee's ⁹⁵ report, dated January 15, 1916, was filed
5 with the clerk of this court January 18, 1916. There accompanied the report and were also filed the minutes of the evidence taken by the referee and the exhibits.

The respondent was admitted to the bar of this State in 1889 and ever since has practiced his profession in the city of Syracuse. He has had a large practice, especially in negligence cases.

Joseph Michels, the petitioner, resides in the city of Syracuse. He is not and never was an attorney at law. His principal occupation for many years has been the soliciting of retainers for different attorneys in Syracuse, chiefly in negligence cases, looking up the evidence, and, after obtaining retainers, rendering assistance in preparing such cases for trial or settlement. For the period of about six years he had been employed by the respondent in that service, and when he left that employment he served other attorneys. He was again employed by the respondent in the summer of 1912 and continued in such employment until about the month of July, 1914. This service was under a written contract dated August 12, 1912, a copy of which appears in the evidence. By its terms this agreement was to continue for the period of five years from its date. The respondent was a member of the firm of Newell, Chapman Newell of Syracuse, N.Y. The petitioner was furnished by the respondent with printed forms of agreement of retainer in negligence cases, copies of which are in evidence.

Michels obtained a considerable number of negligence cases for the respondent and his firm, from which both Michels and the respondent and his firm received large sums of money.

Upon ample evidence to sustain his finding the learned referee finds that the transactions of the respondent with Michels under his written agreement and in the use of the retainers procured by Michels constituted violations of subdivision 2 of section 274 of the Penal Law (formerly section 74 of the Code of Civil Procedure), and such violations were many in number.

We adopt the language of the learned referee where he discusses the use of the agreements of retainer, above referred to, to wit: "It appears that the practice of obtaining these retainers by Michels, was about as follows:

- 96 Learning of an *96 accident, from which a negligence action might probably arise, through the newspapers, or from any other source, Michels, either at the request of the respondent, or upon his own motion, would promptly proceed to the place of the accident, interview the person injured, or in case where death had ensued, the members of his family, present to them his view of the case, recommend the retaining of the respondent's law firm, and if successful in his endeavor to obtain a retainer, would cause one of these printed blanks to be filled out, signed in duplicate, and one of the duplicates delivered to him, which he returned to the respondent. In some cases the retainers produced by the respondent and placed in evidence (there are fourteen or fifteen of them) were signed by the proposed plaintiff and by Newell, Chapman Newell. In some cases, the retainers produced appear to be signed by the proposed plaintiff alone, but the evidence justifies the inference that in such cases another copy signed by Newell, Chapman Newell was delivered to, and left with, the plaintiff. These retainers which are in evidence were produced upon the trial, in most instances, at least, by the respondent."

Again we adopt the language of the learned referee: "The Court of Appeals [Matter of Clark, 184 N.Y. 233] has adopted a popular name for one who solicits negligence cases for an attorney, which authorizes me to say that a man following that occupation may properly be called an 'ambulance chaser.' The courts have said that 'ambulance chasing' has brought deserved discredit upon those engaged in it; that it is a practice 'disgraceful for a member of the legal profession * * * that has been commented upon at meetings of lawyers and in judicial decisions as well as by the general public; * * * that it is 'also a practice which is unprofessional and destructive of the honor of the profession and of the confidence of the community in the integrity and honor of its members.' [Matter of Shay, 133 App. Div. 555.]"

"It is not unjust to say that Michels after his nearly twenty years' experience may properly be called a professional 'ambulance chaser' and that the respondent, at the time of the execution of the contract of August 12, 1912, well knew that fact; *98 and I think the inference cannot be avoided that Michels' capabilities in that line of activity were a prominent feature in the desirability of his employment by the respondent. After his employment he used his capabilities as an 'ambulance chaser' for the benefit of the respondent in numerous cases and this was done in part, by the use of retainers which have already been considered. I think it necessarily follows that the respondent when he employed such services, which are held to be discreditable, disgraceful, unprofessional and destructive of the honor of the profession, was, irrespective of any statute, guilty of professional misconduct and of conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice."

The able counsel for the respondent, who represented him on the hearing before the referee and in this court, have urged us earnestly to pursue a more lenient course, but our conception of the gravity of the respondent's offending and our duty in the premises, after careful consideration and with a feeling of sorrow, requires that we should revoke the license issued to the respondent to practice as an attorney and counselor in the courts of record of the State of New York and strike his name from the roll.

It follows that the report of the referee should be confirmed and the usual order of disbarment granted. Ordered accordingly.

All concurred.

Report of referee confirmed and order of disbarment entered.
